Ottawa Ready To Build 'Reasonable Number' Homes To Relieve Housing Jam

OTTAWA, July 30.—(CP)—Plans for Wartime Housing Ltd. to assist municipalities which have become crowded but which have no direct war industries were announced in the House of Commons today by Munitions Minister Howe.

...The plan, intended to aid families of men in the armed forces as well as other deserving permanent residents, is already in operation, Mr. Howe said.

Speaking in reply to a question by T. L. Church (Con., Toronto-Broadview), Mr. Howe said plans have been worked out for Wartime Housing to build "a reasonable number" of houses of set design in crowded municipalities as an assistance to local authorities.

NEED IS WIDER

While Wartime Housing Ltd. was organized as a crown company to meet particular needs of municipalities with war industries it was recognized that other municipalities were also facing a serious problem, Mr. Howe said.

Under the plan of municipal assistance the houses will be constructed in a zone designated for residential purposes and in which construction of inferior - type houses will be prohibited.

Cost of sewers and other services will be carried by Wartime Housing and the houses will be leased by the city for the duration of the war and a period of five years after the war. The city will, in turn, rent the houses on reasonable terms. Disposal of the assets will be arranged after the war.

In announcing the government's decision to aid crowded municipali-

Canada Warned Against Axis Rumor Drive

OTTAWA, July 30. — (CP) — Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police issued a statement today in which he said vicious and harmful stories are being circulated in Canada by disloyal or subversive persons and he is convinced the rumors are part of an enemy whispering campaign aimed at injuring the Dominion's war effort.

"The circulation of rumors throughout Canada is increasing and has already reached a point that convinces me that many of the vicious and harmful stories form part of an enemy whispering campaign aimed at injuring Canada's war effort," declared the commissioner.

"In several instances identical stories have been circulated in the U.S.A. and in Canada. Many of these rumors are the same as those circulated in various European countries as part of Hitler's preliminary "softening up" and in order to cause distrust and dissatisfaction and thereby weaken resistance.

Frequently these rumors are started by propaganda broadcasts originating in enemy countries and are circulated in the early stages by disloyal or subversive persons.

Dealing with such persons is, of course, a job for the police and intelligence services, but it would be impossible for these rumors to achieve their present wide circulation if loyal citizens did not unwittingly assist.

Maisky Tells British House War Situation

By NED RUSSEL

LONDON, July 30. — (BUP) — Soviet Ambassador Ivan W. Maisky gave members of parliament a "frank statement" today on the situation on the Russian front shortly after the British government renewed its pledge to invade the European continent and open a second front.

Sir Stafford Cripps, lord privy seal in the war cabinet, renewed the pledge of Britain's intentions to invade western Europe in the house of commons but gave no details as to when the operations were anticipated.

Maisky, addressing a secret meeting of members of parliament, gave what was described in an official statement as an impressive description of the war situation.

MAISKY

It was not revealed, however, whether he had reiterated Russian demands for an immediate attack on western Europe by the Allies.

STATEMENT ISSUED

The statement issued after Maisky spoke said:

"Ambassador Maisky addressed a crowded meeting of members of parliament with Sir Percy Harris in the chair. Maisky gave a full and frank statement on the progress of the war, particularly on the Russian front. Questions were asked and Maisky gave the frankest replies. Maisky greatly impressed those present with his description of the war position."

It was regarded by observers as significant that Maisky was invited to address the closed meeting of members of parliament following Cripps' new second front pledge.

Germany at the same time started beaming its propaganda toward the United States in an anti-second front campaign demonstrating increasing Nazi anxiety.

NAZIS ASK "BREAK"

In an appeal addressed to "Americans of German blood" the German radio said:

"Why are you fighting your own flesh and blood? Germany is not undertaking adventures in the western hemisphere. Her eyes are directed toward the East, where she is building a big empire. Why not give your German cousins a break?"

The Germans tactfully refrained from saying whether they lacked the ability as well as the time and inclination to attack the western hemisphere. But in a typical example of Teutonic clumsiness it gave this broadcast immediately after one which said that six Allied ships had been sunk in the 24 hours ended at 3 p.m. yesterday, including one in the Gulf of Mexico.

More Canadians Arrive Overseas

By ROSS MUNRO

A BRITISH PORT, July 30.—(CP)—Thousands of Canadian soldiers, eager for a second front, and hundreds of ground crew for R.C.A.F. squadrons have arrived in Britain.

The large contingent had a smooth crossing from Canada which was practically without incident.

Escorting warships dropped a few depth-charge patterns but it is not known definitely that the convoy was shadowed by submarines.

Ship Torpedoed

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 30 — (AP)—The government announced today that the Brazilian ship Tamandare had been torpedoed and sunk.

10 Northwest Airlines Men Die In Crash

MINNEAPOLIS, July 30—(AP)—Ten Northwest Airlines employees were killed when a United States army cargo transport plane crashed today on Wold-Chamberlain field during the take-off.

Dr. G. W. Callerstrom, deputy county coroner, released the following revised death list:

Roy Josephson, St. Paul.
L. D. Husby, St. Paul.
Hubert Wiechman, Minneapolis.
James Painter, St. Paul.
W. C. Rose, Minneapolis.
Robert Paulson, St. Paul.
L. A. Larson, Minneapolis.
Winston A. Luchau, St. Paul.
First Officer Kenneth Olson, 28, Minneapolis.
First Officer John Fischer, 26, Minneapolis.

Airline officials explained that an earlier announcement of 11 dead resulted from the erroneous inclusion of the name of a relative of one victim in the death list.

CRASHES FROM 200 FEET

The plane, a 247 Boeing 10-passenger, was loaded with 270 gallons of gasoline before the takeoff. The ship, formerly owned by United Airlines, belonged to the government and had been acquired by Northwest Airlines to use as a cargo ship on the northern division.

It was operated under the Ferry Command.

Olson and Fisher had boarded the ship to make a check flight. The Northwest Airlines mechanics and groomers went aboard.

The ship, Northwest Airlines' employees who witnesses the crash said, was about 200 feet up when it seemed to nose up, swing over on one side, stall and crash.

The fire that broke out after the crash burned for about 10 minutes. A fire fighting squad from the U.S. navy air base rushed onto the field and extinguished the blaze.

Germans Mass Big Air Force Near Petsamo

By ILYA EHRENBURG
Soviet War Correspondent
(Written for British United Press)

MOSCOW, July 30—(BUP)—A large German air force is concentrated around Petsamo, Finland. The fliers are old-timers—every one has been decorated for bombing British cities.

In June, the Germans repeatedly raided Murmansk. Now, after a brief intermission, the raids have been resumed. The wooden city has suffered from fires, but its harbor structures are intact.

EXCLUSIVE

Some increase in the enemy land forces also has been noted. There are no Finnish soldiers in the north. The Germans regard this area as especially important and prefer to use Finns alongside Rumanians and Hungarians as cannon fodder, in the south.

The war on the northern front now is a war of position: of artillery duels and reconnaissance patrols amid barren cliffs. Wider activity soon may be expected. The Germans are bent at all costs on cutting Russia off from Britain and America. Until recently, they hoped to do it by attacks on convoys. Now they obviously concluded that without successful land offensive they can't accomplish their aim.

FINNS ARE SNIPERS

The Finnish 72nd Infantry Brigade is fighting on the Don river. During the winter, the Germans used Finnish ski-runner battalions on the Kalinin and Bryansk fronts. This summer, the Germans are using them in forest areas as snipers, hidden in the trees.

Recently the Germans brought 120 Finns condemned for disobedience to Smolensk. These Finns build roads as convicts, and German overseers flog them with whips.

British Officers, Seamen Arrive To Take Over Vessels

Nazis Claim Last Caucasus Rail Link Cut

LONDON, July 30. — (CP) — —Reuters said it has recorded a Vichy broadcast in which the Vichy News Agency reported that German forces from the Kerch Peninsula ended at dawn today on the Taman Peninsula of the Caucasus.

By The Canadian Press

Hitler's invasion armies, racing toward the Caspian Sea, reported today they had cut the last major rail line to the Caucasus oil fields, while in the north the Russians declared they had beaten off all German attempts to hammer wedges into Soviet lines above Stalingrad.

Late dispatches indicated that the Germans had found a "soft spot" in the Russian defences east of Rostov and were exerting their main efforts in a drive to isolate the Caucasus.

Meanwhile, amid widespread agitation for an Allied invasion of western Europe, Sir Stafford Cripps again told parliament in London that plans regarding a second front could not be divulged.

SITUATION ACUTE

In the Soviet campaign, the situation appeared to be growing rapidly more acute in the northern Caucasus, where the Russians acknowledged fresh Nazi advances at several points.

The German high command asserted broadly that the Russian line of retreat to the east had been cut off in the great Don river bend, but gave no details.

Dispatches to Red Star said a gigantic seven-day battle was raging in the Don bend over Stalingrad, involving thousands of troops, planes, field guns and tanks.

Red Star said the Germans reached the eastern bank of the river in one sector but were driven back.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, said Germany now is throwing her last resources into the great summer offensive.

RUSH IN RESERVES

Front-line dispatches said Marshal Semeon Timoshenko is rushing huge reserves of manpower into the struggle, while Nazi prisoners were quoted as saying that the Germans have been forced to shift troops from other sectors to the front to bolster the Don River offensive.

A mid-day bulletin from Soviet headquarters indicated that the Germans, hurling waves of 40 to 50 tanks into a series of attacks, had gained some ground in the Kletskaya sector, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad, but the communique added:

"All attempts by the Germans to drive wedges into our defences failed."

On the far southern front the Russians conceded fresh German gains in the Bataisk sector, 15 miles below Rostov-on-Don.

"Heavy fighting is going on," a Soviet communique said, referring to this region. "The enemy has launched several attacks and advanced in separate sectors."

Love Is Enemy Agent No. 1

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, July 30.—(CP)—Love is enemy agent No. 1 for Canadians training with the Royal Navy to make combined operation (Commandos) raids.

Security and secrecy are of supreme importance since battle secrets may reach the enemy, and the greatest cause of revealed secrets is love.

"Don't Tell Her" is the theme of posters hung up wherever combined operations men gather. Yet by little fragments of affection in a letter home or a goodbye hint to a wife or girl friend in Britain a soldier may imperil the lives of thousands.

"It's not drunkenness and careless talk in pubs that cause us the most grief," said a combined operations officer. "It's not casualness, or browned-offness or disloyalty. It's love. Love is helping Hitler.

"We find that in most cases the offender is a fellow who is not particularly impressive and is trying to be a big shot with some girl."

GENERAL SAYS:

Russ Counter-Blow Is Declared Nearing

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, July 30.—(AP)—"The day is approaching when the Red army will deliver a counter-blow," Maj.-Gen. Zhuravlev, military commentator for the Moscow News, said today in a review of the Battle of the Don.

"The German army is still capable of scoring short-lived successes in separate sections of the front, but we are certain the German war machine is hurtling to its own destruction and will inevitably be smashed," he wrote.

He said the situation at Voronezh had turned in favor of the Red army and that the southern flank position, while serious, "affords no grounds for pessimistic appraisals."

The Germans have transferred seven divisions from France to Voronezh, he declared.

Also reviewing the Battle of Egypt, the Moscow News, which is published here, said it showed again "luck is no ally of Il Duce," whose plan to take Alexandria had failed.

"Development of the campaign gives ground for assuming that the whole African affair is nothing but a German ruse to divert attention from the principal theatre of hostilities, the Soviet-German front, and from western European countries where a second front is expected to open," the review said.

Murderer Elects Death By Firing Squad For Crime

Britain's pledge of a second front, renewed in the House of Commons today by Sir Stafford Cripps, means more than just the big air offensive which is being stepped up now that the weather over western Europe is improving.

His statement of Britain's "military intentions" is an implicit promise of armed invasion of the continent, and Germany's present propaganda line indicates strong German fear that it will come very soon.

The situation of the Russian armies, desperately pressed along the Don, also suggests that the Allies will feel impelled to take early action. Premier Josef Stalin's order to the Red army to halt its retreat might possibly be interpreted as

Indian Crisis Looms Nearer, Reports State

By JOHN R. MORRIS

NEW DELHI, India, July 30.—(BUP)—Friends of Mohandas K. Gandhi reported today that an early crisis in India's struggle for independence is threatened and hinted at a desire on the part of Indian Nationalists for some guarantees of future freedom by the United States.

Gandhi

One close friend of Gandhi renewed previous efforts of Nationalists to bring President Roosevent into the picture by saying that "a few words" from the President could avert a grave crisis.

(In London today, the British government warned India that all means would be taken if necessary to cope with the civil disobedience campaign planned by Gandhi.)

The followers of Gandhi said that unless prompt action is taken a crisis of far-reaching ramifications was threatened when the All-India Nationalist Congress Party meets soon to act on Gandhi's proposal for a civil disobedience campaign.

No Interference With Training Of Troops Permitted

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP)—Every interference with the rapid and efficient preparation of the armed forces for combat must be halted at once, War Secretary Henry Stimson said today in response to appeals for furlough of military personnel during the harvest season.

By SIDNEY J. WILLIAMS

LONDON, July 30. — (BUP)—The Royal Air Force with Canadian airmen participating, today followed up a strong night bombing of Germany's Saarbrucken coal and industrial centre with a daylight attack that ripped the Calais-Boulogne spearhead of the Nazi invasion coast with thunderous explosions.

The blasts of bursting bombs and gunfire around Calais and Boulogne shook houses on England's Dover coast for a half hour, after which the British raiders swept back across the straits to their bases.

The night attack on Saarbrucken by long-range British bombers was the R.A.F.'s third major raid in four moonlit nights.

BAG EIGHT BOMBERS

As they rained tens of thousands of incendiary bombs and hundreds of big high explosive bombs on coal pits, iron, steel and engineering works of Saarbrucken, Britain's night fighter planes and the new secret British anti-aircraft guns broke up enemy raids on the English Midlands and downed at least eight big bombing planes of a small fleet.

Resumption before dawn today of raids on German-occupied territory was marked by three giant explosions, well inland from the Calais area of France, which startled people along the southeast England coast from their sleep.

The explosions were not immediately explained. They followed by two hours a fighter and fighter-bomber attack on the area.

The air ministry said a strong force of planes, which meant a fleet running well into three figures, engaged in last night's raid, and that they made a heavy concentrated attack on Saarbrucken as the main objective.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE

"Preliminary reports indicate that much damage was done," an air ministry communique said.

Official admission that nine planes were missing indicated that the raid, though heavy, was of second rank in the new scourge offensive of the R.A.F.

It was reported that they met almost no opposition and it was believed that losses were greatly under the average of less than 5 per cent.

Last night's raid on Saarbrucken was the second of the war there, but the first major one. A small raid was made on Saarbrucken Nov. 3, 1940.

In bombing the Saarbrucken coal and war industry area, the R.A.F. planes switched their attack from the Ruhr-Rhineland and the northwestern area where Germany is building the submarines which are attacking Allied shipping in the Atlantic.

It was believed possible that the planes damaged the porcelain factory on the outskirts of Saarbrucken, reported to be the biggest in Germany, owned by Franz Von Papen, the wily Nazi ambassador to Turkey.

NEW GUNS IN ACTION

A joint air ministry-home security ministry communique said much damage was done at Birmingham which was raided for the second time in three nights and admitted numerous casualties, some fatal.

A British United Press eyewitness said the big new guns kept the damage and casualties to a minimum and entirely prevented the dive-bombing tactics which the enemy planes had used Monday night.

It was the greatest barrage Birmingham had ever had, he noted, as had Londoners when the big guns first opened here.

ties, Mr Howe said it should be recognized that while temporary accommodation to meet war needs is accepted as a government responsibility, permanent residences are the responsibility of the municipality.

The policy adopted by Wartime Housing was the only one which could be discovered to construct a large number of houses quickly. While there had been some criticism of the houses in the commons he had not heard any complaints from tenants.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said he had sent to Mr. Howe a petition mainly about the rents that were charged. Mr. Howe said the petition had not come to his attention.

Mr. Church in his question said his attention had been called to the serious housing situation in Toronto.

Finance Minister Ilsley yesterday announced the government's intention to encourage the construction of small permanent homes in congested areas through a supplementary estimate of $1,000,000.

In addition, up to $2,000,000 will be provided to guarantee loans for the transformation of large houses in congested areas into apartment dwellings, Mr. Ilsley said.

HERE ARE CONDITIONS

Conditions which will govern the assistance by Wartime Housing in congested municipalities as outlined by Mr. Howe:

1—Building area, or areas, are to be zoned for residential purposes and no inferior houses are to be erected therein;

2—Sites are to be conveyed by the city to the company for a nominal consideration, subject to reconveyance back on the termination of the project;

3—Cost of construction of the houses, streets, grading, water, sewers and other necessary improvements to be paid by Wartime Housing Ltd.;

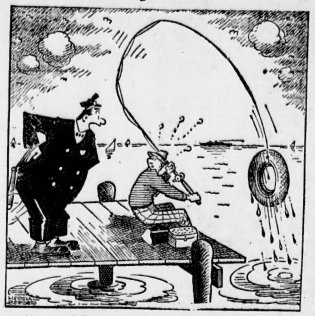

4—The city undertakes to lease the housing project for the duration of the war plus five years thereafter, at a rental to be agreed upon, and the city further agrees to administer the project and bear the expense of administration, renting the housing to deserving citizens at reasonable rentals;

5—The company will make payment for services to the city as called for under the usual wartime housing municipal agreement;

6—Reasonable arrangements are to be made for the disposal of assets at the termination of the agreement.

"Under such an agreement, the federal government is prepared to bear the capital cost of facilities required to meet the problems of the families of men serving overseas and other deserving cases of hardship to permanent residents," said Mr. Howe.

Funny Business

"Hey, you! Gotta permit from the rationing board?"

EDMONTON WILL SEEK TO PARTICIPATE

Mayor John W. Fry stated Thursday that every effort would be made by the city to participate in the home building proposals outlined by Minister of Munitions Howe in the house of commons.

He said there was a serious shortage of homes in Edmonton, and unless relief under the plan proposed was forthcoming hardship might occur in the city this winter.

The mayor said that no intimation of this plan had been received by civic officials to date, and added that immediate enquiry concerning the plan was being made to Ottawa.

U.S. To Command R.C.A.F. In North

OTTAWA, July 30.—(CP)—Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons serving in the Aleutians area will operate under the United States naval officer who has been placed in command of the joint operations in that area of United States naval and army aircraft, it was said yesterday at R.C.A.F. headquarters.

Several squadrons of Canadian bombers and fighters are operating in the Alaskan zone, and spokesmen said they have been under United States direction. Now that the American operations have been unified under a naval officer, the Canadians automatically fall under his operational jurisdiction.

tionalist leaders have promised, India will throw her strength wholeheartedly into the war against the Axis.

The confidant of Gandhi declined to amplify his statement regarding a "few words" from Mr. Roosevelt but his remark, combined with recent statements by members of the working committee, suggested that he had in mind United States guarantees to India.

Presumably he was thinking of American guarantees of possible new British offers which the Congress party might otherwise reject.

Leading members of the Congress party have stated on numerous occasions their unwillingness to give any value to British promises regarding post-war independence for India.

No War Review Before Recess

LONDON, July 30.—(CP)—Sir Stafford Cripps, lord privy seal and leader of the house of commons, announced today that Prime Minister Churchill will not make a statement on the conduct of the war before commons recesses for the summer.

Sir Stafford told the members parliament would be recalled if the government decides later that a statement is necessary.

Date of the recess was not made public because of security regulations.

Supplementary Estimates Are Before House

OTTAWA, July 30. — (CP) — Finance Minister Ilsley today tabled in the House of Commons supplementary estimates of $28,159,700 for the current financial year, of which $3,920,000 is chargeable to ordinary account, $250,000 to capital account and $23,989,691 to special account.

HOUSE SHORTAGE

To provide for advances under the National Housing Act to help overcome a wartime housing shortage, a finance department supplementary estimate of $1,000,000 is included in those tabled today. There is a token $1 supplementary to provide for conversion of large dwellings into apartments.

(Yesterday in the house Mr. Ilsley said an amount up to $2,000,000 would be authorized under the Home Improvements Loans Guarantee Act of 1937 for conversion of large dwellings.)

A further amount of $150,000 has been added for subsidies for cold storage warehouses.

Estimates under external affairs, including salaries of high commissioners, minister plenipotentiary, consuls and staffs, is increased by $100,000, bringing the total vote including the main estimate to $777,965.

In the finance department the vote for the royal mint has been increased by $166,289, bringing the total to $477,262.

A vote of $500,000 is provided for the Vocational Training Co-ordination Act, which includes vocational training in ordinary training schools and universities.

An additional $12,000 is provided for the senate and $15,000 for the house of commons.

A vote of $2,500 is provided to cover travelling expenses of the senators going home for the Easter recess, and a similar vote of $7,000 for the members of parliament.

A vote of $30,000 is to provide payments at $15 a day for expenses of members of the committee committee on war expenditures while they serve on the committee during the house recess.

Investigations during the summer following the practice initiated last year.

The supplementary estimates add $10,000 to the vote for drafting and map reproduction in the mines and geology branch, bringing this vote to $125,600.

The grant to the Yukon council is increased by $26,000, bringing the total to $60,000.

A vote of $18,691 is provided for payment to Indian trust funds for expenditures incurred on account of the agency at Fort Frances, Ont.

The vote to the income tax division of national revenue to meet the requirements of the new budget is increased $753,480, making the total vote $5,220,225 compared with $3,824,118 during the previous fiscal year.

POST OFFICE

An additional vote to the post office department totals $862,900, the largest being $600,000 for railway mail service and $162,000 for air and land mail services.

An additional $765,950 is provided for public works, and $40,240 for mail and steamship subsidies in the department of trade and commerce.

Ford, 79 Today, Sees Great Era Following War

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT, July 30. — (AP) — Henry Ford is observing his 79th birthday anniversary today at peace with himself but distressed at the sight of a world devoting most of its energies to destructive effort.

Ford comes to the beginning of his 80th year unshaken in the conviction that beyond the war lies an era of prosperity unparalleled in the world's history.

Asked how it felt to be 79 years old, Ford indicated he had forgotten about his birthday anniversary.

If his participation in the arms production task helps shorten the war by one day, he indicated, the effort will not have been in vain.

WAR OF GREED

The industrialist said the war "was born of greed — an insane lust for power and financial gain, and until sanity returns to those responsible for it we cannot expect it to end very soon."

Ford added that if the conflict results in a federation of the world's peoples, with an eradication of political and tariff barriers, a future secure and peaceful for all races and creeds is assured.

Ford long has predicted a world federation as an ultimate certainty.

The farm-born industrial genius visualizes an intensive development of the soil as a preventive of war.

"Intensive production," he said, "means a world busy in work and a friendly and helpful exchange of goods. Such a world has neither time nor incentive to war."

Idle land is one of Ford's pet peeves. He favors forcing it into production through high taxation if necessary.

Prepare Plans To Tighten Up Labor Control

OTTAWA, July 30. — (CP) — Tightening of control over Canada's manpower supply is expected to be announced shortly with the enforcement of new orders now being framed.

One of the most important steps understood to have been decided on is the provision of a "cooling off" period between the time of dismissal or resignation of an employee and the time he actually leaves employment.

This new approach to the problem of shifting manpower, which Elliott M. Little, director of national selective service, has referred to as one of the most serious wastages in Canadian labor, will halt hasty action both on the part of the employer and employee. It is anticipated the compulsory "cooling off" period will be one week.

NO DAYS OF GRACE

Regulations soon to be announced are expected also to eliminate the three days of grace at present provided in reporting job changes to employment offices.

Following the announcement June 17 of regulations which make it necessary for employers to obtain permits from an employment office for all new employees, regulations were relaxed through the provision of a three-day period of grace so that an employer could engage a new man without a permit if he reported the employment within three days.

Approval then was required in the form of a permit from the selective service officer who is also manager of the employment office.

Organization of the employment offices to handle the heavy requirements of the selective service program now has reached a point where this is no longer necessary and it is expected that announcement will be made in the near future that proposed job changes must be reported and a permit obtained before the new employee can be hired and start work.

ABSENTEES ARE WORRY

Absenteeism is another major problem which is being actively studied and on which some action is expected in the near future. Selective service studies have shown manpower waste running as high as from 15 to 25 per cent. in some plants.

This condition is understood to be particularly serious in plants where large numbers of women are employed. The number of women in industry is constantly increasing.

Improvement of working conditions is considered at least a partial solution for this problem and co-operation of employers is being enlisted in an energetic campaign now being carried on by selective service officials.

Mr. Little has already made it clear that the government will "have to seek women out more and more in the future and guide them into the work which must be done." That is another matter which is understood to be the subject of numerous selective service conferences these days.

Welcome Yank For Commander Of Second Front

LONDON, July 30 — (CP) — The Daily Telegraph, criticizing the tabloid Daily Mirror's stand against naming an American Allied commander for a second front in Europe, declared today that selection of a United States general for the job "would be welcomed officially and unofficially in this country."

Referring to Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States Army, who has been mentioned for the post, a Daily Telegraph columnist said:

"The absurdity of objecting to an American commander on the ground that no American is of "proved ability" in the command of masses of men appears when it is remembered that to take one example, Marshall directed the Meuse-Argonne offensive in 1918 and was then acclaimed as a tactical genius.

War Taxes O.K. If Victory Aid Says Executive

TORONTO, July 30. — (CP) — Thomas J. Watson, whose income as president of International Business Machines is one of the largest on the continent, says he doesn't mind the way wartime taxation has taken a major part of that income. "The only thing that matters is winning the war, and so far as I'm concerned the government can tax me down to the $6 a week I started on. And they take my capital, too—if that will help win the war."

Conscription Bill Passed By Senate

OTTAWA, July 30—(CP)—The senate late yesterday passed Bill 80, the government's amendment to the National Resources Mobilization act to allow conscription for overseas service.

Second reading was given the bill on a 42 to 9 vote ending a three day debate. Third reading followed immediately. Opposing the amendment were five Liberal and four Conservative members of the upper house.

Senator Norman Lambert (Lib. of Ontario), speaking yesterday, called for a fuller realization by Canadians of the Dominion's place in international affairs.

Today's War Moves

a sign that he believes help is on the way. It had been expected that the Russians would fall back in calculated order, drawing the enemy deeper into the vast spaces of the country and wearing him down by endless counter-blows.

ALLIED PLANES BEST

However, the opening of the land front in no way implies that the aerial offensive will slacken, or that it will not play a major part in the expected victory over Germany.

Germany is definitely outclassed in the air, both in fighters and bombers. British production is keeping ahead of losses and the United States output is expanding daily.

The Germans developed a new Focke-Wolfe 190 fighter which is a speedy climber and better than the Messerschmidt 109 F. However, the R.A.F. reports that their new Spitfires are superior to either of the German types, and some newer, secret models are being developed.

The Allied plan is to conduct around-the-clock sweeps over Germany, day and night, both by the R.A.F. and the American Army Air Force which is being developed in Britain.

24-HOUR OFFENSIVE

Nights are growing longer and weather conditions, usually good in western Europe in August, are even better in September. Reporting from London on the air situation, Edward W. Beattie of the British United Press cables:

"The warning by Air Marshal Harris of a 24-hour offensive against the Reich which will gradually come into being as the summer wanes, lifted the curtain briefly on a development which has been going on with complete lack of publicity—the creation of an American air striking force to join the R.A.F. in an assault on the heart of the Axis."

Beattie pointed out some of the problems involved, such as the assembling of thousands of ground personnel, big supply dumps, extensive repair shops and an organization carefully integrated with the British.

Referring to the four-engined American bombers capable of carrying four tons of bombs to any part of Germany, Beattie concludes:

"Britain's heavy bombers, American Fortresses and Liberators and a few models still on the secret list are being counted on to turn the trick. If they can, the Battle of Britain is going to look like a pleasant summer breeze."

Paying Its Way

Even those who think it is inappropriate to hold Edmonton's fair in war years will share the satisfaction that the recent event did not result in a deficit. On the contrary, there was a profit of $20,397, from which overhead expenses have to be deducted. And the federal and provincial Governments collected about $30,000 from the fair-goers, mainly through the betting machines; of which sum three-quarters went to the Dominion to help meet the war bills.

From the standpoint of the Fair itself the advantage is that the sixty-four year old tradition was maintained. Edmonton holds its place in the western circuit, and will continue to be known near and far as one of the "fair" centres of western Canada. The importance of thus holding the position that has been gained is not to be overlooked. There once was a Winnipeg Fair which for many years drew nation-wide attention to that city. For some reason the annual series was interrupted; and Winnipeg has never been able to get a fair going since. The point is worth remembering.

The Heaviest Yet

Sunday night's raid on Hamburg is said to have been not only the heaviest since Cologne, but even more important in the destruction of enemy production plants. While Berlin used the usual formula in minimizing the damage, the Rome radio said it was the heaviest air blow yet struck the Reich. As 29 bombers were lost, it is supposed about 600 went over, and they used two-ton bombs.

It was the 93rd aerial bombardment of the city. Hamburg ranks as the greatest submarine production centre in Germany. That no doubt is why it was singled out particularly for the large scale attack—and why it has been bombed so often. Smashing the plants where they are built is the cheapest and most effective way to deal with the menace of the prowling U-boats.

On the heels of this most destructive of all raids on enemy centres Air Marshal Sir Arthur Harris broadcast a warning to the people of Germany that what was done to Hamburg will be done to their cities "one by one". From which it is inferred that attacks on the same scale may be expected to be made regularly in future, as weather permits.

Sir Arthur has just returned to Britain from visiting the United States and looking over the factories where bombers are built. What he saw evidently satisfied him that the machines are now coming out fast enough to make possible a continuous overhead offensive on the Cologne-Hamburg pattern.

Why The Troops Were Sent

The debate on the Hong Kong report broadened out into a debate on the propriety or impropriety of sending the expedition, which it was bound to do and desirable that it should do.

If the discussion accomplished nothing more, it served to present the facts afresh and in perspective. That it did accomplish anything more there is no indication, for the administrative changes in the department were made long before the debate was foreseen and before the investigation was held.

When the British authorities asked Canada to send two battalions to Hong Kong no Canadian troops had been or were being fully trained on this side of the ocean. Preliminary training only was given here, and advanced training overseas. This arrangement has been modified since and because Canada became liable to invasion when Japan entered the war.

As a result no troops on this side of the ocean had had experience in the use of trench mortars, anti-tank guns, tanks, and some other types of weapons. Nor was such equipment available with which to fully arm even the Hong Kong contingent; the arms were being rushed to Britain and to Russia as fast as they were turned out.

The question then was whether to send such troops as were available, with what equipment could be secured in four weeks, or to tell London that Canada could not respond to the request. Perhaps London should have been told this, but what a furore would have been aroused if that had been done! And how would Canada have stood among the sister nations if that word had been flashed back to London?

Australian troops, New Zealand troops, South African troops, had all at that time been long and heavily engaged in the fighting in Africa. No Canadian troops had been engaged anywhere, save for the sortie into France on the eve of the collapse there. The Dominion was ringing with demands that we get into the war somewhere. So the men were sent to Hong Kong—not that there was fighting there, but that there was a threat to be faced.

There was hope in London, in Washington, in Ottawa and in Canberra that a show of force might deter the war-makers at Tokyo. That was why the Hong Kong garrison was strengthened, and why the Prince of Wales and the Repulse turned up at Singapore—without air protection. War in the Pacific was not expected, anywhere outside the Axis circles, on the evening of Dec. 6th. Tokyo's representatives were that day sitting in conference at Washington, discussing terms for a peaceful arrangement of the situation in the Pacific.

The Allies and the United States were taken completely by surprise the next morning when Japan launched its treasonable attacks on Pearl Harbor and Manila. Then, and only then, was it plain that the battalions sent to Hong Kong would be in action.

This in brief is the history of the sending of the expedition to the doomed fortress. It is a melancholy record. But the battalions were sent because they were asked for, and were the most experienced troops we had. Canada at least did not refuse to meet the call as best it could.

It ill became some members of parliament, who last summer were clamoring to have Canadian troops sent to Libya, to suggest on Monday last that Ottawa should have refused London's request to send a contingent to Hong Kong.

Based on the registration of two years ago, it is calculated there are now in Canada 2,400,000 boys and men between the ages of 16 and 45 years. The figures would be similar for the age span of 20 to 49 years. Allowing for as many women of corresponding ages brings the total working population under 50 years up to 4,800,000. On the accepted proportion of 16 workers to one soldier this would provide an army of less than 300,000 men. Our enlistments in army, navy and air force are now about 50 per cent more than this figure.

Time To Call A Halt

The constant, deliberate and increasing execution of innocent hostages is something that cries to the United Nations for justice. Deploring it is not sufficient; whatever power we have to prevent it, should be exercised without delay.

The Germans have been fully warned by Mr. Churchill, and by Ambassador Mr. Roosevelt, against the use of gas. That does not mean that either Britain or the United States desires to use gas as a weapon of war. It is an inhuman practice, but if it is necessary to use it on the Germans and Japanese to prevent them from using it upon the Russians and the Chinese, then it is going to be used. The warning seems likely to have the desired restraining effect, and that is its only justification.

Why cannot the slaughter of hostages in Europe, and similar ruthless barbarities, be restrained in the same way? Let the Germans be given brief warning that if the outrages continue, they will be repaid in kind, that German villages will be bombed, one after another, until the German atrocities cease!—Winnipeg Free Press.

SIDE GLANCES - - - By Galbraith

"You're wrong, stranger, this isn't a sleepy little town any more! You ought to see the excitement when we get word from one of the boys in Australia, Ireland or Africa!"

"Vancouver Just Like Singapore"

By ANNE WOODS IN THE VANCOUVER SUN.

"Vancouver is just like Singapore in the days before its bombing." Such is the impression made by the coast city on Mrs. Henry H. Markham, young Vancouver woman who fled Singapore with 1,150 women and children aboard the Empress of Japan only a few days before its fall.

Mrs. Markham returned to Vancouver Monday after three months in England, expecting to live in a city with regular blackouts, to learn about the nearest public shelters, to take part in a preparedness program—and is astounded at our phlegmatic attitude with the Japs on our very doorstep.

Mrs. Markham is not an excitable person. She has a quiet sincerity in her voice that stab deep into matters that dreadfully concern people of today.

Over-Optimism

Asked if the fall of Singapore was expected, there was no hesitation in her summing up.

"The man on the street expected it to lose Singapore," she said, "but he was branded a defeatist. Officials kept spreading the propaganda that we would hold it. And yet the feeling all along was that Singapore couldn't fall. We kept hoping against hope. Putting faith in reinforcements that did not come. Troops from four ships that did walk down the slip were prisoners within the week.

"It was expected the city would be held as a fortress. Everybody had his or her job in the civil defense. First-aid posts were up to the mark. The men had eight hours policing, eight hours for business, and eight hours sleep. Local defenses were well organized. Yet that first bombing of Singapore caught us bound in so much red tape that not until the Japs were over Johore again did their return from the bombing was the order given for lights to be doused.

Women "Sold"

In the last week of January the governor appealed to the European women to stay with their husbands, to help keep up the morale of the natives. But the Japs, offering $500 for every European woman turned over to them, really got business evacuating wives to Australia in a hurry. Leaflets were also dropped telling the Chinese not to co-operate with the British, promising good treatment when they would be taken prisoners.

Treachery and fifth column work certainly played a part, but Mrs. Markham feels, with thousands of others, that it was the ghastly lack of planes that spelled grievous loss after loss. For the people of Malaya were intensely loyal, at first. But repeated bombings, their children machine-gunned in the streets, and no sign of retaliation, worked havoc among the natives. The native police took to wearing their sarongs under their uniform, so they could divest themselves of the badge of office at a moment's notice. To the Malays, it just didn't seem to make sense for them to hold out under such terrific odds.

Blames Red Tape

Mrs. Markham believes that of many things to be done to win this war, one is the cutting of red tape. Red tape kept the people of Singapore burning as the bombs fell. Red tape in one known instance kept a number of planes on the ground to be destroyed, when they were actually warmed up for fighting! And red tape undoubtedly to keep a woman off a ship with bombs falling in the harbor, because she had no passport! Friends thrust her with her two children through a porthole, and thus she joined a passage and is now stranded in England.

Mrs. Markham's first impressions on her return to Canada from England was a shock. Shock of plenty. Fruit piled high in windows brought tears to her eyes for those in England who have not. Shock of people kicking against trivials when in Britain things have buckled down to life and death so gallantly and uncomplainingly. And shock of the twinkling lights as their ship sailed up the St. Lawrence River.

Mrs. Markham mentioned that passengers coming to Canada from England are given grapefruit and oranges and apples, but that is the only way to buy England. They have had their vitamins.

Feel Guilty

One not only feels guilty when traveling in England, for to purchase a railway ticket one must first send them a "is this journey necessary?" "Save space for troop movements"; "Save money for war effort"—but one becomes apologetic even about not chasing foods. In a store in Halifax she caught herself saying, "Do you suppose I could have some of those pears in the window?" In England one hesitates to buy a "sweet" as may deprive a youngster.

A young man just returned to Canada on the same boat asked in the same apologetic manner for a package of cigarettes. Mrs. Markham had laughed and went up to him, "We forget we are now in Canada, here we buy with the veranda at this sort of thing. Since 1934, he said, he has been advocating: "The use of gas in warfare is horrible, but modern civilization any excess of buying power medium of exchange which, not without risk, would cause an inflationary rise in prices of goods and services." This is simple enough, except to emphasize that having created the money to finance economic activity, you have to tax it back later. But Mr. Slaght started out to relieve the taxpayer, not to increase taxation, and you can see he landed in a dead end at once. As for Mr. McGeer, his idea may seem to tie up all the loose ends of money-printing proposal, but actually anyone who believes that taxation on a scale sufficient to prevent the inflationary effects of tripling the volume of currency is either politically, socially, or economically impossible, and an unusual concept of what organized society can stand.

The Slaght proposal, therefore, implies that the heavy hand of taxation can be used to maintain the economic balance to avoid chaos arising from excessive issue of currency. At the present time, the effects of inflation, as pointed out by Mr. Slaght is primarily that taxes are too high! With three times as much currency in circulation, generating a dizzy and mountainous volume of purchasing power in which the dollar value of the national income would soar perhaps to three or four times its present rate of $8,000,000,000 a year, what scale of taxation would be required to keep the balance?

But the real argument advanced by Messrs. Slaght, McGeer and Quelch was that, to prevent inflation, we must rely on the most rigid tightening up of wartime economic controls. This is a different story. The Slaght proposal, said Mr. Ilsley, would blow the price ceiling to kingdom come. Said the inflation chorus: "But what is the use of the powers of law to keep prices down, so you are using now?" This is worth looking at in another article.

Too Much Second Front Talk

By HAROLD L. WEIR

There is a despatch from Britain which indicates that all, except the most violent and unthinking critics of the Government, have agreed to allow the matter of the second front to be left with Mr. Churchill.

It is just about time some such decision was reached.

Harold L. Weir

In the first place, there can be absolutely no doubt that the Prime Minister is quite as anxious to engage the enemy on another front as anyone else. A study of Mr. Churchill's strategical career will leave no doubt that his disposition is inherently towards recklessness rather than caution.

In brief, unless time has committed the alien sin of temperament and viewpoint, he is the last man in the world to be accused of timidity or vacillation. One cannot possibly imagine even a whole cabinet-full of timorous colleagues holding him back from any decision which he believed to be timely and feasible.

Accurately judging Mr. Churchill's character thus, it is obvious that he does not believe a decision to open up a second front to be timely and feasible at the moment.

Why, then, does the press and public keep attacking Mr. Churchill for failing to do something which, in the light of his full and accurate knowledge, he knows would be suicidal?

Promise to Russians

Another reason why it is clear that Mr. Churchill does not need to be sold on the necessity for a second front lies in the fact that he has already promised such a front to the Russians.

If Mr. Churchill did not intend to open a second front, he would not have made that promise. Having made the promise, we know he will keep it.

It is ridiculous to urge him to do something to which he is already pledged and to question his judgment in the matter of the proper time to do it.

Only those in authority are completely acquainted with all the circumstances. And it is the circumstances which must determine the exact moment of attack.

All this criticism merely weakens Mr. Churchill's diplomatic position among the leaders of the world.

It serves no logical or valuable purpose.

Obstacles

As I say, there are many factors in the second front situation of which the public cannot possibly be aware.

But there are several so obvious that they have even been discussed in this column.

There is, for instance, the shipping situation.

It is common knowledge that the Axis has taken and is still taking a tremendous toll of trans-Atlantic traffic. The actual figures are not available, of course. But one is led to the conclusion that the shipping situation is not yet sufficiently cleared to justify a major military operation involving American troops which would necessitate a constant flow of reinforcements and material across the seas.

The public is evidently not conscious of the tremendous replacements of manpower and equipment required by forces engaged in active operations in this war.

The means of destruction are so efficient and so sweeping that reinforcement requirements are probably greater than in any past conflict.

This means that the time element has to enter into every military calculation. That is to say, a military unit must be considered not only in terms of its present strength, but in terms of its capacity for endurance in point of time.

To be brutally plain about it, such a unit must be thought of as effective for a surprisingly short period. For every thousand men in action, there must be several thousands standing by to act as replacements.

This is a factor few civilians consider, when making demands for a second front. A prodigious army shrinks appreciably when it has to be divided into first line troops and reinforcements.

Too Much Talk

All the hysterical demand about a second front has actually operated against its own purpose.

The success of any military operation in this war depends largely upon the element of surprise.

In these days, a commander cannot afford to telegraph his punches.

There is no such thing, for instance, as a repetition of the Spanish Armada when the British knew two years in advance exactly what Spain would do. Such an operation would be even more fatal for the attacker than it was then.

Actually, all this public talk about a second front has tied Mr. Churchill's hands because it has destroyed, to a great extent, the element of surprise.

I believe such an operation may be launched at almost any time. More likely, however, it will not be launched until the public clamor has died down.

The best way to promote the establishment of a second front, as I see it, is to keep one's tongue between one's teeth and have confidence in our leaders.

Jeep Vs. Paratroops

FROM A MOSCOW DESPATCH TO THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS.

The Germans are using paratroops on a bigger scale than last year. They are employing new techniques, but are being met by the Red Army's specially trained "paratroop destroyer battalion."

This is on the authority of Maj.-Gen Mihail Pavlovitch Sprin, who is a specialist on parachute warfare.

Today paratroops are playing a new and greater offensive role, and it happens that American-made jeeps, this war's lack-of-all-trades scout cars, are proving most valuable to the Soviet anti-paratroop battalions. Together with British Bren gun carriers and Russian light trucks, the destroyer units dash wherever the parachute menace threatens.

Gen. Sprin says there are now dropping parachutists from giant gliders, each of which carries 50 men. Only 60 were reported in similar devices a year ago.

Russian destroyer battalions have great mobility and operate independently of regular army direction. They maintain liaison by flare signals and radio and have been most successful.

An illustration of Soviet efficiency in paratroop defence, Gen. Sprin stated that the longest time any Nazi parachute unit has stayed behind the Russian lines was 48 hours. He added that every parachutist dropped, unless a battalion together with British Bren gun carriers and Russian light trucks, the destroyer units dash wherever the parachute menace threatens.

The Russians also are using paratroops on an increased scale. In the course of the Don battle, they have been flown forward to places where the lines are taking the most punishment. These airborne troops are able to take defensive action in a very brief time. They are more often landed by big Soviet transport planes than by parachute, but they are trained for everything.

Recalling Pooh-Bah

FROM THE MONTREAL GAZETTE.

All this talk, in Parliament and out, of the divisibility or indivisibility of Commissioner Sir Lyman Duff on the one hand and Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff on the other, starts a train of thought in the minds of Gilbert and Sulivan addicts. Remember Pooh-Bah's advice to Ko-Ko, on wangling a state grant to pay for his wedding celebration?

Of course, as First Lord of the Treasury, I could propose a special vote that would cover all expenses, if it were not that, as leader of the opposition, it would be my duty to resist it tooth and nail. Or, as Paymaster-General, I could so cook the accounts that, as Lord High Auditor, I should never discover the fraud. But then, as Archbishop of Titipu, it would be my duty to denounce my dishonesty and give myself into my own custody as First Commissioner of Police.

Those who like their satire double-edged may enjoy reflecting that the legal opinion which suppressed Col. George Drew's letter was given by Mr. King by none other than George A. Campbell, K.C., president of the Westmount Conservative Club, who acted as Government counsel at the Duff Commission inquiry into the Hong Kong expedition.

Inflation Problems Exercise Best Minds Of Ottawa

By B. T. RICHARDSON

OTTAWA.—In making his proposal that the government should issue $1,200,000,00 in national currency in order to meet war costs, Mr. Arthur Slaght, K.C., the Parry Sound Liberal, did not discuss the effect of such an operation on the economic system of Canada. It was merely a method of getting revenue instead of taxing the people. "It will not create inflation," he said, "the reason being that we now control all expenditures in this country."

At present the volume of bank notes in circulation in Canada is $470,000,000. It is steadily increasing. This is more than twice as much currency as Canada had in circulation to finance the big boom of 1928-29. The circulation then was $265,000,000. The present circulation has been sufficient to provide cash holdings in the banks of $330,000,000, supporting a credit structure of deposits of $3,200,000,000, and producing a Canadian national income in the neighborhood of $8,000,000,000 a year. These are the financial indicators that the Canadian economy has reached the stage of full activity. This should be kept in mind in considering whether Canada should issue another billion or so of currency. The main peacetime argument of the monetary reformer who wants to issue credit or currency is to increase production. But that argument has no bearing on the present situation. Inadequate as financial policy may seem to the reformer, it has stepped up Canadian economic activity to full pitch. There is little or no additional margin of physical production to be hoped for.

Currency Volume

If full production is achieved by a currency volume of $470,000,000 coursing through the economic system, what would be the effect of tripling or quadrupling the volume of currency? First of all, the inflationary tendencies of "rifle power," mentioned by Mr. Ilsley, would show themselves in a tremendous rise in the deposits. Nominally this could be expected to soar to ten or twelve billion dollars. But, replied Mr. McGeer and Mr. Quelch, the way out is to make the banks hold 100 per cent cash reserves against the deposits, instead of the present 8 per cent. None of the monetary reformers are very enthusiastic about this. It leads to an inclusive argument, as far as financial theory is concerned though it revolutionizes the position of the banks. The banks would not be able to pay interest on deposits under these circumstances, and it is likely result is that every customer would have to pay the banks a service charge to look after his funds.

Mr. Quelch recognized this, quoted Prof. Irving Fisher in support, and admitted he was not entirely sold on the idea. The operation of the economic system is relatively simple in its financial aspects. The volume of credit flowing through the economic system, assisted by a proportion of currency, originates as bank loans. After it has performed the function of financing production and distribution, it is steadily extinguished by the repayment of the loans. This is a continuous process by which a balance is more or less maintained between the volume of credit and the job it is required to do in financing production and distribution.

The point for the monetary reformer is, if the country gets away from this system, what devices will be used to withdraw credit after it has performed its function? After you pour in your billion dollars directly, Mr. Slaght, how will you get it out when it has finished its job and its continued existence will mean one thing only, inflation?

New Education

Judging by his speech, Mr. Slaght has not proceeded this far in his new education. But Mr. McGeer provided the answer. Mr. McGeer is a veteran at this sort of thing. Since 1934, he said, he has been advocating: "The use of gas in warfare is horrible, but any excess of buying power medium of exchange which, not without risk, would cause an inflationary rise in prices of goods and services." This is simple enough, except to emphasize that having created the money to finance economic activity, you have to tax it back later. As for Mr. McGeer, his idea may seem to tie up all the loose ends of money-printing proposal, but actually anyone who believes that taxation on a scale sufficient to prevent the inflationary effects of tripling the volume of currency is either politically, socially, or economically impossible, and an unusual concept of what organized society can stand.

20 Blooms

WOODSTOCK SENTINEL-REVIEW

A new record was set today for Regale lily blooms. This was a huge stock about 4½ feet high with a cluster of 20 lilies at the top in a perfect ring formation. It was from the garden of Mrs. R. E. Arnup, 93 Wilson street, and has been put on view in the S.S. window, with one from Al Siple's garden which has 14 blooms.

He was notoriously mean, and would always get his medical advice free if the doctor wasn't on his guard. One day he met him in the street. "Halloa, doctor," he said: "Nice weather, isn't it? Going to the cricket tomorrow, or are you too busy? By the way, I want to ask you—what would you give a chap for a sore throat?"

"Nothing," said the doctor. "I do not happen to want a sore throat, thanks!"

Huge Barns Vanish From Modern Mechanized Farms

FAIRVIEW.—Time was when a huge hip-roofed barn was an indispensable part of any efficient farm and many farmers took a secret pride in having the biggest and most impressive looking barn in the district.

Modern mechanized farming has changed that however. This was discovered here last week by H. S. Fry, associate editor of the Country Guide, who is making a tour of the Peace River country to gather material and pictures for his publication.

The farm of Frank L. Van Troyen, just a half mile west of this town, was pointed out as one of the finest in the area. It has a fine modern house, numerous granaries and an implement shed—but no barn of any kind. The owner farms over a section of land and does it exclusively with machinery.

Near Bluesky, the visiting editor took pictures of Ed. Petersen cutting sweet clover which stood six and one-half feet high. At Brownvale he saw the Dave Keillh hog ranch on which over 1,000 head of pigs are nearing market weight.

Stock Parade Is Feature At Lloydminster

LLOYDMINSTER, July 30. — Citizens' Day at the Lloydminster exhibition drew large crowds in spite of cloudy skies and a moderate wind. One of the features of the afternoon program was the stock parade showing the prize herd of L. Burki of Streamstown and Douglas Payne of Lloydminster in the dairy cattle classes and the herds of the Creech Estate, Fred Dunstan and Juggins Bros., all of Lloydminster, in the beef classes. In the horses there were three outstanding groups owned by Pete LaHaye, J. Fox and Mrs. Ed Martin, all of Lloydminster.

The Lloydminster exhibition this year was strictly a regional exhibition as there was a lack of the circuit exhibitors, making all the livestock competition local and the prize money staying in the district.

One of the features that created a lot of admiration was the exhibition of William Martin's sheep dogs who, with uncanny intelligence, herded a flock of sheep forming a figure eight between two marker dogs. They also herded the flock into a corral and then divided the flock in two at the command of their owner and trainer. Mr. Martin, whose home is at Maple Creek, Saskatchewan, is considered to be one of the greatest sheep dog trainers on the continent and is also a large breeder of sheep.

UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS

The management and directors of the Lloydminster exhibition are assured that the 1942 fair was an unqualified success in every respect. However, the effects of the war was apparent in several instances, many of the regular exhibitors being absent, serving in some branch of His Majesty's forces.

Milleton won the Wednesday half of the men's softball tournament by defeating Maidstone in the final event and went on to play Tuesday's winner, Thomasville, in the grand final of the fair. In previous games during the day Maidstone knocked out Northbend 14-6 and Marsden lost out to Milleton 10-8.

In the afternoon game in baseball Neilburg defeated Marwayne 10-2. The batteries were: Neilburg, Flor and Pelgrew; Marwayne, W. Brobroski and Jackie Bremmen.

The final game of the day was played between Neilburg and Maidstone, Tuesday's winners, and resulted in a victory for Neilburg, 6-5, giving them the championship of the 1942 exhibition. The batteries were: Neilburg, Scarbin, Flor and Pelgrew; Maidstone, McKenzie, Rhinkes and Stoughton.

In the final game of Tuesday Amanault, of Fort Pitt, set a perfect record. However, the effects of the three home runs in three successive times to bat.

RED CROSS HELPED

Earlier in the week Alex. A. Mitchell and Mat Alsager, president of the Exhibition association, donated a purebred cow and heifer, with papers, to the Exhibition association for the Red Cross. In order to help in Canada's war effort the Westminster exhibition sponsored and paid all expenses in a giant raffle for these two animals. Red Cross societies in the large area served by the exhibition undertook the sale of the tickets retaining the proceeds of their sales for their own branch. The latest records of the sales received indicate that some $1,200 was raised in this way. The draw for the animals was held on the platform on Wednesday evening. Mayor Holden, of Vegreville, made the draw. W. R. Gordon, of Neilburg, was the winner of the cow and Blair Jeffry, of Wilkie, the new owner of the heifer.

Bay Tree Farmer Is Badly Scalded

BAY TREE. — Mike Sajtovich went through the last war without a scratch and never had a serious accident in his life until he went to help a neighbor butcher a hog lately.

While they were scalding the carcass by scousing it in and out of a tank of boiling water, Mike's foot slipped and his leg plunged into the tank. The pain caused him to faint. He was rushed toward the hospital by a man until a car was met that took him the rest of the way. He is now recovering.

This will be the first time he has been able to rest during harvest. His sturdy son and kind neighbors, however, will see to it that his grain is cut and stooked.

London Lad Finds Skeeters Are Worse Than Enemy Bombs

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE.—The mosquitos are more plentiful than for years, and very large. They are spoiling all outdoor sports and picnics. Children going swimming in the rivers or lakes are badly bitten. Besides the mosquitos, householders report many swarms of hornets and bees and many have been badly stung.

The mosquitos are working havoc with the old country airmen training here, and in some cases, have put the boys right into hospital. One boy from London, whose face is so badly bitten and swelled that he can hardly see, thinks for the summer time, he would willingly exchange mosquitos for bombs, for he says, "bombs don't hit everyone, but the mosquito doesn't miss a person."

It's A Small World English Lad Finds At Sylvan Lake

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE.—It's a small world, and the young English airmen training here find it smaller than they thought. One of them coming in for the week-end missed the bus at Sylvan Lake. He looked around for a ride, and when none appeared, asked where he could spend the night. He was sent to a private home and found that the lady was from his home town in England!

Though they knew nothing of each other's families, they had a wonderful visit and the lady refused to take pay for the lodging. And in the morning she found him a ride to Rocky and added an invitation to visit her any time.

240,763 Fewer Farm Workers Survey Shows

OTTAWA, July 30.—(CP)—A dominion-wide survey of farm labor by the economics division of the federal department of labor showed an over-all reduction of 240,763 persons, or 18.2 per cent, in the farm labor supply since Jan. 1, 1940, it was announced yesterday.

The survey, made during February and March, dealt extensively with every phase of family and hired help, and wages in the various districts, according to the type of farming.

The net decrease in male family workers in 1940 and 1941 was estimated at 125,000. Subsequent additional enlistments and departures early this year brought the net loss in farm family workers between Jan. 1, 1940, and March 15, 1942, to 141,863.

98,900 DECREASE

The net decrease in male hired workers between Jan. 15, 1940 and Jan. 15, 1942, was placed at 98,900.

In detail, male family help on farms in 1942 averages 126 for every 100 farms, a substantial decline from 141 in 1941. The range now is from 111 in British Columbia to 144 in Quebec. A total of 31 female family workers per 100 farms was reported as assisting with farm work this year. There was a substantial increase in female help on dairy farms.

He was accompanied by J. I. Stevens, northern director of U.G.G. elevators, who also gave a few remarks. Bill Bailey, former, acted as chairman, introducing the speakers.

Political Stand For Women Said Vital War Need

TORONTO, July 30.—(CP)—Canadian women with sons in uniform must take an interest in politics if they want to see their boys return, Mrs. Dorothy G. Steeves, C.C.F. member in the British Columbia legislature for Vancouver North, told delegates of the women's council of the C.C.F., meeting at luncheon here yesterday.

"Politics means the production of guns and tanks for a second front, without which it is murder and suicide to send our boys overseas," she said.

Upbraiding women who refuse to take part in politics "because they haven't the time," Mrs. Steeves recalled economic conditions in Canada 10 years ago when young men were riding the rails and begging for bread and jobs."

SAME "BLUNDERS"

"The same people responsible for that misery 10 years ago—who exported copper and nickel and steel to our potential enemies up to the 11th hour because of high profits—these same ghastly blunderers are running your war now and making a mess of it," she said.

Mrs. Steeves said there was more to politics than running for office and speech-making.

"Politics is really the essence of citizenship. You can't be a citizen if you're not a politician." Part of a woman's political duty today is to "think things through. Women did not see the danger behind pre-war cries of peace and disarmament and as a result, young men and children have shed blood in the present war because of our mistakes."

"The least we can do is to take the trouble to think through the problems of reconstruction so this will not be repeated."

Mrs. Steeves believes women can play an important part in post-war reconstruction.

"We do not want social service for the underprivileged after this war because there should be no underprivileged," she said. "Rather we want social justice for all."

NATIVE OF HOLLAND

Born and educated in Holland, Mrs. Steeves received her law degree at the University of Leiden. During the first Great War she was legal advisor to the Netherlands government in charge of food distribution.

Coming to Canada in 1919, she has since been interested in all phases of social service for members of the lower income groups and has been active in housing, child welfare and public nutritional projects. Her son is a member of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Mrs. Steeves thinks women have ignored politics because "we are accustomed to classing politicians as a rather low order of humanity—in the same class as one's mother-in-law or the dentist."

Admitting her own nervousness when she delivered her first speech in the British Columbia legislature, she said: "My knees knocked together but after I heard some of the men's speeches I felt much better."

1942 'Wonder Crop' In South Alberta

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., July 30—(CP)—Reports from southern Alberta, describes this year's harvest as the "the wonder crop of 1942."

The prize story so far comes from the Wolf Creek Hutterite colony on the old Iowa farming company land south of Stirling. There a 1,500 acre field of winter wheat is going under the binder, about 200 acres having already been cut. Examination of a number of heads picked at random reveals heads with 50 to 100 kernels of plump grain are by no means uncommon. It is expected the crop will average 50 bushels to the acre or better.

What makes the Wolf Creek crop all the more remarkable is that, sown last August, it passtured 800 sheep, more than 400 cattle and 100 head of horses for much of the late fall, winter and early spring, and appears not to have been hurt in any way.

B.C. Promises To Help Prairies On Wood For Storage

VANCOUVER, July 30.—(CP)—Assistant lumber controller D. D. Rosenberry told a group of prairie lumbermen here yesterday that British Columbia would make a "desperate effort to help the prairies" in their urgent need for lumber for construction of facilities for storage of one of the largest grain crops in history.

Mr. Rosenberry said he did not know the full extent of British Columbia's probable contribution, as the prairies represent only one of several big markets asking for all-out production from B.C.'s lumber mills.

"Our job is to allocate the output and available stocks wherever the need is most urgent," he said.

'We Ran Right In And Gave Her The Works' Spirit Of Sea Hornets Captured In Line

Canadian Naval Officer Highly Praised For Pursuing Course Until His Object Achieved.

Wartime needs for security have prevented much being written about the deeds of young Canadian officers serving with the Royal Navy in British waters. In motor torpedo boats and gunboats they put out from their bases "to seek out and engage the enemy." German E-boats, minesweepers, destroyers, and even a cruiser and two battleships have been engaged by "sea-hornets" in which Canadian officers are serving. Following is a description of the work of these officers, showing their instant readiness to fight and how they fight.—EDITOR.

By LIEUT. E. H. BARTLETT, R.C.N.V.R.

There's a slip of flimsy paper which an officer in the Canadian Navy prizes very highly. It is a Special Order of the Day, issued by a vice admiral, Royal Navy, throughout his command.

Briefly the special order recounts a spirited action between a unit of mosquito-craft led by the Canadian officer and an armed German trawler. The story is best told by excerpts from the order.

"On encountering an armed trawler which gave an incorrect challenge off the enemy coast, the unit under the command of Lieut. Maitland immediately delivered a deadly and sustained attack, finally effecting the complete destruction of the enemy vessel," it commences.

"Despite damage to his own craft shortly after the action began, Lieut. Maitland pursued his course until his object was achieved."

COURAGE UNDER FIRE

Two other officers of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, and an able seaman of the Royal Navy are also named; the first for "ably assisting in the action," and the seaman because, when Lieutenant Maitland's craft was damaged, he effected "temporary repairs under adverse conditions," showing "considerable seamanship and courage."

The Special Order of the Day devotes 37 words to telling of the seaman's exploit: "With a heavy sea running he was lowered over the bows in a bowline and held in under the flair, a position which necessitated working a great deal of the time in water and under extreme difficulty." A most satisfactory description no doubt, for those to whom the Order of the Day was sent, but rather unsatisfyingly technical for those unconversant with ships.

The Order of the Day, however, was not written to provide a thrill, but to "commend to all in the command the courage of the officers and men of this unit, and particularly those mentioned above." Which is why Lieutenant J. D. Maitland of Vancouver, whose name heads those "above," prizes this piece of paper so highly.

He could, of course, tell the whole story . . . but for the inhibitions which seem to come naturally to men of the Silent Service. His description of what happened is almost as bald as the official report.

"We ran into this trawler. She got in our way. We went right in and gave her the works."

His unit opened fire "with everything we had." The enemy replied, and a shell struck home on Maitland's ship. It did not stop her from "going in damn close" and dropping a depth charge beside the trawler.

"Things were moving pretty fast," the story continued, "and I'm afraid I cannot give you many details."

"SHE WAS A GONER . . . THAT'S ALL"

"By this time the trawler was stopped, with steam coming out of her all over, so we buzzed around to her other side, slowed down and dropped another depth charge. I'll swear my No. 1 (second in command) dropped it right under her. That really kicked hell out of her, and she was a goner. That's about all, really."

On the question of the English seaman who had effected the temporary repairs "under adverse conditions," the Canadian officer was more eloquent.

"He really did a good job," runs his story. "These boats have a bow which curves in sharply from the deck, and we were holed on the water-line. We had to pass a line right under the keel so that we could haul this fellow into the side after we had lowered him from the bow. It meant he was in water all the time he was working, and under water quite a lot when waves broke over him. He was there a long time, too, and was he cold! Boy, he took a beating but he certainly did his job."

The Canadian officers like the English hoses, too.

"When we come in from a patrol everything is looked after for us," is the report. "As soon as we are alongside there are people standing by to look after our boats, check the guns and engines and things like that, and make them ready for immediate service again. And they always have bacon and eggs waiting for us, that means something, you know." (Eggs are at a premium in war-time England.)

"The patrols aren't too comfortable, even if there's nothing doing. We're closed up for action all the time, and it's quite a strain. Our food is cooked up for us ashore and taken out in thermos flasks, but meals don't count for much afloat. That's why the bacon and eggs go down so well."

Running into a trawler is but one instance of the hoped-for unexpected action. Running over the top of an acoustic mine is an example of the unwanted.

This happened to one Canadian, but he escaped to "get back into the war again."

Being towed home is another of the unwanted parts of the job.

"We were in company," is the story of Lieut. J. A. McCutcheon, of Vancouver. "We were quite close to their shore when we had to tow home one of our fellows whose engines had broken down. We just picked the ruddy thing up and set out for home. It seemed a long, long way, let me tell you."

Lieut. McCutcheon is another who feels that nothing exciting ever happens to him. A couple of encounters with E-boats, in which they fled; a brush or so with enemy aircraft. "Just the run-of-the-mill stuff which goes with the job."

"The job" means much to these officers, who have come from varied peace-time occupations to fight at sea.

ARTIST GOES TO WAR

There is an artist well known in Canada, despite his lack of years, who is making a different sort of name for himself as captain of one of the hornet craft. He has been in seven actions, one of which saw him with a flotilla of small craft darting in to attack the German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst, with their attendant cruiser and escort craft. It was a David and Goliath affair, but Goliath did not enjoy it.

Lieut. Anthony Law, formerly of Quebec, does not talk about what happened except that "we saw them taking avoiding action, and we hope one or more of our fish (torpedo) got home." His description of other actions is equally diffident. One with E-boats and an anti-aircrat ship, for instance, was "purely a flap." ("Flap" being interpreted as an exciting incident.) Action has taken him under the fire of shore guns at Dunkirk and under the fire of heavy escorts bringing German ships down the enemy coast. But . . . nothing exciting.

"LUCKY" FOR ACTION

Unwilling to see anything special in their own exploits, these Canadian officers are quick to see the "excitement" which their conferees have "the luck" to experience. They talk of Lieut. Tom Fuller, of Ottawa, who "once engaged a destroyer and another time took on three E-boats and held a squadron of Messerschmitts at the same time." Or, of Lieut. "Chuck" Bonnell, who got two "fish" into a large German merchant ship trying to sneak down the coast, although she was just surrounded by escorts.

They think it "lucky" to get the action for which they are seeking all the time. And, they say, they wouldn't swap "jobs" with anyone.

Wild-Rideo Doans Take Rodeo Awards

REGINA, July 30.—(CP)—Three members of the wild-riding Doan family, of Halkirk, Alta.—Earl, Muff and Urban—nearly cleaned up all the day money for bare back bronc riding yesterday at Regina's Jubilee Rodeo.

Earl was first, Muff second and Urban split with Cecil Bedford, of Weiser, Idaho, for third money.

Muff Doan was incorrectly reported to have had his arm broken when thrown from a bronc Tuesday. The man with the broken arm was Gerry Meyers, of Moose Jaw.

Winners in the events yesterday follow:

Wild cow milking, Eddie Ivens, Cardston, Alta.; calf roping, Floyd Peters, Browning, Mont. 16 1-5 seconds; steer riding, Frank Voros, Hardisty, Alta.; saddle bronco riding, Jerry Ambler, Kiamath Falls, Ore.; bare back riding, Earl Doan, Halkirk, Alta.; wild horse race, Carl Olson, Leedale, Alta.

Best time in the steer decorating, go-round were: Jimmy Wells, Cardston, 4 2-5 seconds.

Ship Commission In B.C. To Study U.S. Conditions

VANCOUVER, July 30.—(CP)—The Richards Commission now sitting here to investigate the operations of shipyards in British Columbia will leave Friday for Seattle and Portland to study shipbuilding methods in the United States. Members will interview executives and return to Vancouver Monday. It is expected that the commission will move to Victoria about the middle of next week.

Nazi Saboteurs In States Claim To Be Refugees

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP)—Attorney General Francis Biddle denounced the alleged Nazi saboteurs in the supreme court yesterday as enemy aliens who came to the United States bent upon destruction but who, now that they are caught, seek to avoid wartime penalties by appeal to the civil courts.

He urged the court to refuse to issue a writ of habeas corpus demanded by counsel for seven of the eight defendants. Such a writ would have the effect of freeing them from the custody of the military commission which has been conducting their trial.

CHALLENGE TRIAL

The whole military procedure, and President Roosevelt's proclamation ordering it, had been challenged earlier in the day as illegal and unconstitutional by a young army advocate, Col. Kenneth C. Royall, one of two officers assigned to defend the accused men.

Royall, who was sworn by his superiors to exhaust every possible tactic for the defence of the prisoners, argued that everyone, enemy alien and citizen alike, had a clearly defined right to the protection of the civil courts.

And to an accompanying stir of amazement in the courtroom, he said the prisoners contended that they were not saboteurs at all, but merely refugees from Germany. In order to escape from that country, he said, they had consented to adopt the role of saboteurs and be put ashore here by German U-boats.

SIGNED CONFESSIONS

Biddle, revealing for the first time a portion of the testimony given before the military commission, said that the contentions of the government were "completely sustained" by long and detailed confessions signed by each of the eight men.

Their own testimony, he said, showed that they attended a school in Germany in which they were made "competent in sabotage" and were shown plans of American industrial plants, railroads and canals which were to be blown up.

At the close of the day, the court, meeting for a specially-called term, had heard the arguments of both sides. Thursday both Royall and Biddle will present their rebuttals. The issuance of a writ of habeas corpus, or the court's refusal to issue it, is expected to follow quickly.

Score Direct Hit On Jap Destroyer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, July 30.—(CP)—Allied bombers scored a direct hit on a Japanese destroyer off Gona Mission on the northeastern coast of New Guinea, Allied headquarters announced today.

Port Moresby, the Allied base on the southern coast of New Guinea, and Darwin, Northern Australian coastal city, were again raided by Japanese planes, an announcement said.

Three or more persons are required to start a riot, according to law.

"Not Policy" To Intern Japanese

OTTAWA, July 30.—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell told the house of commons last night it was not the government policy to place British Columbia Japanese in internment camps and he was "not afraid" of the situation in Vancouver where some Japanese remain.

Internment for Japanese as a means of security for Canada was advocated yesterday by G. G. McGeer (Lib., Vancouver Burrard) while other British Columbia members urged speedier movement of Japanese from the British Columbia coastal protected area.

If the Japanese were interned accommodation for 23,000 would be required, said Mr. Mitchell. Internment had been ordered for 465 Japanese males who were involved in a strike in work camps established for them in the British Columbia interior.

C.C.F. Approves Broad Program As Parley Ends

TORONTO, July 30.—(AP)—The 10th anniversary convention of the C.C.F. was brought to a close here last night after delegates had elected M. J. Coldwell, the party's leader in the House of Commons, as its national president by acclamation and gave final approval to a program for "victory and reconstruction."

Mr. Coldwell, who has been national chairman of the party, succeeds to the post left vacant by the death in Vancouver last March 21 of J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the C.C.F. Mr. Coldwell, one of the original group which helped Mr. Woodsworth launch the C.C.F. at a meeting in Calgary 10 years ago, has been member of the House of Commons for the Saskatchewan constituency of Rosetown-Biggar since 1935.

"I hope I will leave behind me a fine record as the president who preceded me," said Mr. Coldwell in a brief speech of acceptance. "One thing I can promise you, I will not let you down."

CHAIRMAN NAMED

Professor Frank Scott of McGill University, Montreal, was named national chairman by acclamation.

Angus MacInnis, C.C.F. member of the House of Commons for Vancouver East, was elected vice-chairman over Professor George Grube, Toronto.

Six members were elected to the national council, other members of this group being selected by provincial organizations. Those elected were: Mrs. Grace MacInnis of Vancouver; David Lewis of Ottawa, national secretary; Rev. T. C. Douglas, C.C.F. M.P. for Weyburn, Sask.; Rev. Stanley Knowles of Winnipeg; Rev. A. M. Nicholson, C.C.F. M.P. for Mackenzie, Sask.; and William Irvine, Wetaskiwin, Alta.

Approval of the program for victory and reconstruction—presented by the national council and then sent back for several revisions—was followed by a resolution from George Weaver of Prince Rupert, B.C., asking the "national council to organize immediately a campaign across Canada demanding a general election to displace the old parties and secure a mandate for the C.C.F."

Mr. Weaver, who described himself as "one of those maligned Marxists" said the program contained the basis for socialist reform "but it is no good unless it is transformed into dynamics."

The victory program's revised section of conscription, to which many delegates had taken exception previously, called for the "carefully planned use of manpower to secure the maximum production of urgently needed war materials and foodstuffs, the effective defence of Canada and the greatest possible contribution to the cause of the United Nations."

TOTAL CONSCRIPTION

It opposed introduction of conscription of manpower for service overseas until wealth and industry are also conscripted and suggested that regulations for conscription should respect "the convictions of conscientious objectors."

The convention aproved in principle the public ownership of distilleries and asked the national council to draft a resolution embodying this proposal.

Mr. Irvine, who said that "if you think I'm a prohibitionist bring out a bottle of liquor," declared that "every distillery in Canada should be producing alcohol to make rubber right now."

Another resolution — which was strongly supported by R. L. Calder of Montreal—asked the C.C.F.'s national council "to appoint a legal committee to draw up an amendment to the British North America Act which will embody in that act a bill of rights which shall give constitutional protection for the right of free speech, of assembly, of the press and other rights essential to democracy" and that the national council "press for the inclusion of such an amendment in the B.N.A. Act."

Mrs. Dorothy Steeves of Vancouver assailed the wartime housing program as she introduced a resolution which condemned wartime housing projects "for their high cost and lack of planning by properly qualified technicians."

FEARS "SLUM AREAS"

Mrs. Steeves charged that in North Vancouver houses erected only three mons ago were "sagging and threatening to fall down" and would develop into "slum areas." She said the unit cost had been from $2,200 to $2,800 "for which good substantial houses could be built" and that one firm had been doing all the construction work in Vancouver and "had been getting all the money."

Other resolutions approved advocated: public ownership and control of finance and credit, public utilities, natural resources and heavy industries; increased pay and allowances for men in the armed services; veteran representation on veteran rehabilitation boards after the war; abolition of the senate; broadcasting of parliamentary debates; further development of youth training schemes.

A resolution condemning "cruel barbaric acts" of the Nazi regime against conquered peoples and particularly the Jews, brought from Mr. MacInnis the assertion that Canada could be condemned for its treatment of Japanese in British Columbia.

"The Japanese problem in British Columbia is not a British Columbia problem. It is a national problem," he said asserting that when Japanese are moved from the coastal defence zone they had the right to live as family units elsewhere in Canada.

CO-OPERATE WITH LABOR

A resolution calling for co-operation with the British Labor party, the labor parties in other dominions, the Soviet government, and the India Congress party and socialist groups in other countries provoked long discussion. Mr. Coldwell and other speakers opposed the naming of the India Congress party and finally the entire resolution was referred to the national council for consideration.

News Vendor, 10, Booms Business In Novel Style

VANCOUVER, July 30.—(CP)—A 10-year-old Vancouver news vendor believed there's nothing like atmosphere to boost business. Yesterday, when newspaper headlines shouted of a $56,000 bank robbery here, the lad armed himself with a realistic looking toy pistol in a holster and yelled out of the side of his mouth, "Fifty-six thousand dollar haul in bank holdup." He was sold out in no time.

Fighter Sweeps Long Range Plan To Smash Nazi Transport System

It May Come To This

H. H. Foreman, administrator of fabricated steel and non-ferrous metal, announced from Ottawa that baby carriages are now limited to styles listed by the wartime prices and trade board. Manufacturers are limited to a maximum of four styles of folding carriages and to one style of perambulator. Of seven firms in Canada making carriages four will be permitted to manufacture four styles of folding carriages and one type of perambulator. Another firm has been assigned three styles of folding carriages and one perambulator, and the other two companies will produce three and two styles, respectively, of folding carriages.

LONDON, July 30.—(CP)—An R. A. F. commentator said last night Britain's almost daily raids by fighter planes over France and the Lowlands are part of a long-range campaign to smash the Nazi transport system in the invasion belt.

Tuesday night's fighter raids, said to have damaged more than 10 railroad engines, was similar to 23 swift forays on transport targets in daylight between July 11 and 25 in which 16 locomotives were damaged, 17 freight trains attacked and set afire and 20 canal barges shattered.

Scouting the occupied coasts, fighters have sunk four merchantmen and damaged 44 other merchant ships, the R.A.F. commentator said. He declared fighters' cannon fire had damaged a destroyer, nine mine-sweepers, 15 "E" torpedo boats and five trawlers in other attacks.

SEE HEAVY ATTACKS

Unofficial but extremely well-informed British air sources said they believe the present German raids and frequent reconnaissance flights over Britain merely were a blueprint for the heavy attacks to come next autumn and winter.

The Germans were said to be using new types of machines against Britain. Chief among these is the Heinkel 177, a 35-ton, four-engined machine which looks like a twin-motored plane because two engines are places in each of two nacelles.

A Dornier 217-type, which also is being used fairly extensively, carries as big a bomb load as British aircraft can carry on their longer flights to Germany, according to one well-informed British air source.

PLAN "STRATO-BOMBER"

The Nazis also are experimenting with stratosphere bombers. Two German models which have not reached the practical stage are the Junkers 86 and P-1, twin-engined aircraft with a 77-foot wing span and semi-spherical cabin for the crew.

V

Beef Price To Be Further Reduced

OTTAWA, July 30.—(CP)—The Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced last night that a further seasonal reduction in maximum wholesale beef prices, averaging one cent a pound, will go into effect Aug. 3.

An order issued by Foods Administrator J. G. Taggart establishes a new schedule of wholesale prices for the period Aug. 3 to Aug. 23, with decrease ranging from three-quarters of a cent to two cents a pound for boneless cuts, and from one-half to 1¼ cents for bone-in cuts.

In recognition of standing trade storage practice, retailers will be allowed a week before being required to base their normal mark-up on the new price schedule, if their supplies were purchased at earlier maximum prices.

Bus Travelling To Be Reduced By 27 Per Cent.

Through suspension of bus mileage on some lines and reducing it on others, total mileage of busses in Alberta will be reduced by about 27 per cent, it was announced Thursday by W. T. Aiken, secretary of the Alberta Highway Traffic Board.

Average bus mileage for the province is 4,270,504 miles and this will be reduced by 1,190,197.

The action of the Alberta Highway Traffic Board is being taken as a result of the order made a few weeks ago by the Dominion controller of transit in Regina, who ordered the three prairie provinces to reduce bus mileages by at least 25 per cent.

It is expected here that the reduction will be even greater by the end of August when all changes have been made.

Duplications will be eliminated where two lines have been serving the same areas and Sunday runs will be stopped on other lines. Companies have arranged to co-operate by operating one vehicle where the lines have been duplicating services.

GOOD SUPPORT

The government has been receiving good co-operation from the bus companies in respect to the reduction of schedules, Mr. Aiken said.

A voluntary reduction was asked by the government and, although each company did not reduce service by 25 per cent the average will fully meet the requirements of the Dominion controller, Mr. Aiken said.

One schedule between Calgary and Edmonton has been eliminated altogether and Sunday operations from Edmonton to Wainwright will cease.

The bus from Edmonton to Hughenden will now go to Hardisty only and the Calgary-Waterton Lakes run will close down Friday.

There will be other changes throughout the year.

Edmonton Boys In Raid Over Saarbruecken

LONDON, July 30—(CP)—Canadian bomber crews who took part in last night's attack on Saarbruecken reported today that the city was given "a good pasting."

Wing Cmdr. J. D. Twigg, of Olfawa, led one R.C.A.F. squadron and his navigator, Flt. Lt. Gordon Fisher of Regina, said billows of smoke could be seen and even smelled at a considerable altitude.

PO. A. W. Wood, of Toronto, saw "great fires" in the city. fires which members of a Canadian Halifax squadron reported were visible for 75 miles.

Sgt. Donald West of Edmonton, captain of a Halifax bomber, described the raid as "the pilot's pipe dream."

Sgt. Jack Burke of Montreal, an aicbomber in a Halifax flown by Sgt. Jack Campbell of The Pas, Man., said:

"We nipped down under the cloud level to 4,000 feet, made our runs over the city and my rear gunner saw our bombs burst in the built-up area of the mills along the river."

The crew included Flt. Sgt. W. L. Dark of Edmonton.

Flt. Sgt. Joe Steward of Calgary, who flies with PO. E. G. Shockley of Vancouver and Sgt. W. C. McCron, Toronto, said his crew saw a big explosion which they believed was a gas tank.

"There was a hell of a big explosion," he said. "First a white flash, then a red one. It lit up the sky for about 20 miles."

Dr. Anderson is the first curler weat of Manitoba to be so honored.

Montreal Ace Shoots Down 4 Axis Fighters

LONDON, July 30.—(CP)—Sgt. George F. Beurling of Montreal, awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal two days ago, destroyed four Axis fighter aircraft and damaged several others in air duels over Malta last Monday and broke his month-old record of three bombers destroyed and one damaged in one day.

The young Montrealer has destroyed 12 aircraft. It was disclosed today. Monday's bag consisted of two Messerschmitt 109's and two Italian 202's, and he shot down three of them in one engagement. The record is believed unequalled in any theatre of war since the Battle of Britain and places him in the forefront of Canadian fighter pilots.

Beurling was turned down by the Royal Canadian Air Force. The 20-year-old ace failed to meet R.C.A.F. education standards so went to Britain aboard a freighter. He was eventually accepted as a fighter pilot by the Royal Air Force.

The story of Beurling's feat was given front-page prominence in London newspapers. The Standard ran part of it in black-face type under the heading, "The Man From Verdun."

RIVALS FUMERTON

Beurling's achievement rivalled the impressive performance of PO. R. C. Fumerton of Fort Coulonge, Que., who was credited with shooting down five enemy bombers over Malta in eight days.

Flt. Lt. Brad Walker of London, Ont., Beurling's flight commander when they both were serving in the same Canadian Spitfire squadron in England about six months ago, described the Montrealer as a real flying fool who'd try anything."

"I told him once," he added, "he would wind up either with a Victoria Cross or be shot down early in his career because of his unusual tactics. It looks as if it's the Victoria Cross."

Walker continued, jokingly, "he's so mad about flying that it would not surprise me if, were he taken prisoner, he asked to be allowed to fly against us."

During cross-channel sweeps Beurling occasionally dropped behind his section to mix it with Nazi fighters who more often than not outnumbered the Canadians.

British Pension Rates Increased

LONDON, July 30—(CP)—The government's proposals to increase supplementary pensions was approved by the commons yesterday after a long and stormy debate at the close of which Labor members forced a division on an amendment resulting in the largest adverse vote in the government's existence.

The amendment said the proposals to increase the pensions two shillings, sixpence (55 cents) weekly and make other allowances for winter fuel and clothing, could not be accepted as "an adequate step toward meeting the difficulties of old-age pensioners and widows."

Ernest Bevin, minister of labor and national service, assured the house that the increase was not the government's final say on the matter.

The amendment was rejected 223 to 63 and the government motion was agreed to without division.

Rains Cut Down Alberta's Honey

Honey production in Alberta will not be as high this year, owing to the lengthy period of rainy weather, officials of the department of agriculture stated Thursday.

At this time of the year hives are usually 75 per cent filled. Now they are only 50 per cent filled.

Last year the honey production in the province was 3,120,000 pounds.

Although the honey yield will be lower there are 25 per cent more hives than were in production last year.

Alberta Crops' Growth Later Than Last Year

Alberta crops this year are about two weeks later than usual, and are in various stages of development, according to Alberta Wheat Pool officials. Despite this, excellent crop growth is being maintained in most Alberta districts. There has been practically no change in the general crop situation during the last week.

Moisture is adequate in central and northern Alberta and in most of the south, but moisture is urgently needed in the southeast and in parts of the Peace River district, in order to promote proper filling.

HEAVY RAINS

Light to heavy rains covered practically all of central and northern Alberta during the week, but in southern Alberta and the Peace River district rain consisted of light to heavy showers of a local nature.

Some lodging has taken place on a small scale, but the fear is expressed in many reports that there is a danger that lodging of grain may become a problem. Heavy growth of weeds also causes some concern.

SOME HAIL DAMAGE

Hail again did some damage in a few scattered areas.

Wheat is now 90 per cent. headed, in comparison with about 70 per cent. last week.

Some deterioration occurred during the week in the condition of crops in the southeast and in the Peace River district, but the condition figure in some central and northern districts is slightly higher. The general average for the province remains unchanged from a week ago.

According to reports, moisture conditions are good in 321 districts; in 25 areas, rain will be needed soon, and it is urgently required in 21 districts.

GOOD MOISTURE

At the same time last year, 30 districts reported good moisture conditions; 87 were in need of rain shortly, and 266 required rain urgently.

The condition for all grains at this date and for the past two years at comparable dates is as follows:

Wheat, July 25, 1942—98 percent of normal; 1941, 69 percent; 1940, 91 percent.

Oats—1942, 98 percent; 1941, 66 percent; 1940, 95 percent.

Barley—1942, 99 percent; 1941, 68 percent; 1940, 93 percent.

Flax—1942, 96 percent; 1941, 77 percent; 1940, 91 percent.

Rye—1942, 91 percent; 1941, 72 percent; 1940, 83 percent.

Leaders' Fault If Duty Failed States Hepburn

PORT TALBOT, Ont., July 30. —(CP) — Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario said last night that if Canada fails to do her duty in this war "an embittered and enslaved posterity will damn those of us who are leaders of public thought and opinion today."

Speaking at the annual reunion of the Aldborough Old Boys' Association at this village near St. Thomas, Ont., Mr. Hepburn said the federal government "can best serve the people by forgetting political expediency and saving the nation, not its own selfish political future."

"I believe I interpret the sentiment of the Canadian people when I say we have had enough of political log-rolling at Ottawa. We want to stand shoulder to shoulder with our British and American allies in the struggle for existence. There is no other consideration now."

"MICE OR MEN"

The Ontario premier urged his audience to ask their members of parliament "whether in this hour of greatest trial and unprecedented danger they intended to be mice or men."

"When you people first sent me to Ottawa I looked upon the Liberal party as a great national organization prepared to follow the traditions of Laurier and the other great leaders of Liberalism of the past. It is a Liberalism that no longer exists. Only narrow, selfish, political expediency survives. Today Canada is governed by a group of men whose autocracy and stupidity are doing irreparable damage to this country."

Cabinet Seeks Ways To Save Paved Roads

Question of restrictions on heavily loaded oil trucks, that are said to be causing great damage to Alberta highways, was being considered at a meeting of the cabinet council Thursday.

Hon. W. A. Fallow, Minister of Public Works, stated last week that because of the lack of oil for highway maintenance some kind of action would have to be taken in the case of heavily loaded oil trucks, which he claimed were causing "millions of dollars damage" to the roads of the province.

The Alberta Highway Traffic board has had the matter under consideration and have discussed the possible action to be taken with Mr. Fallow.

As a minimum corrective a greatly reduced load limit is certain to be put into effect.

Mr. Fallow said that revenue from these trucks does not come near to offsetting the costs of maintenance for highways.

"If nothing is done about this question Alberta would have no highways in about a year," Mr. Fallow declared.

Great Barrage Greets Raiders Bombing Cairo

CAIRO, July 30.—(AP)—Bombs fell on Cairo today in an early-morning raid which evoked the greatest anti-aircraft barrage to date.

The populace began to gather in hotel lobbies, apartment house shelters and other places of refuge, still in their night clothing, when the alarms sounded about 3 a.m.

The people had heard many alerts and occasional anti-aircraft fire but few bursting bombs since war came to the Middle East.

Some of the curious went to rooftops and balconies to watch the tracers, the play of lights and the shellbursts in the moonlit sky.

The Egyptian interior ministry said the raid caused one fatality and "slight damage to property."

Air raid warnings also were sounded in the Suez canal area and in some provinces in upper and lower Egypt, the ministry said.

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly

THE Ogopogo of the North Saskatchewan river is on his annual summer loose again. The latest reports of this piscatorial monstrosity are from Rocky Mountain House where it has been seen by Indians and small boys. The most conservative description says that this thing is "an ugly grey beast, about 15 feet long, with huge red-rimmed eyes, horns and a mouth big enough to swallow a small boy."

Then Kjar, provincial game warden, said these stories left him "frankly, very puzzled." He suggested that the creature may be an overgrown lingo. These weird "fish" are usually about two or three feet long, but sometimes reach a length of eight or 10 feet.

Kjar says he personally saw a ling of eight or nine feet in the North Saskatchewan several years ago. "They are extraordinarily ugly, with a wide, flat head, and huge white-rimmed mouth," he added.

Before the war started, all the scientists scoffed at the stories of Ogopogo coming from British Columbia and of the Loch Ness monster in Scotland. Now the scoffing has given way to doubt.

Depth charges, mines and mighty aerial bombs falling into the oceans have resulted in strange creatures being found washed up on beaches—creatures that have biologists frankly puzzled—just like our good Them Kjar. Most of these weird denizens of the deep could easily qualify as ogopogos.

Under normal conditions, they apparently rarely, if ever, come to the surface, but with terrific explosions from depth charges and aerial bombs, these deep water freaks are being blasted loose.

There are vast areas of the ocean so deep that man has never been able to probe them in even a limited way. Scientists agree that there is no reason why unheard of creatures may not live in these depths.

It is possible that the sea serpents that sailors used to yarn about to incredulous landlubbers and the Ogopogo that many reliable Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle men saw cavorting along the coast a few years ago are such denizens of the deep that were rooted out of their natural habitat by upheaval of the ocean's floor—a submarine volcano for example.

It's hard, however, to figure how such a creature would ever get into the North Saskatchewan. The only possibility is that it may have worked up from Hudson Bay . . . a very slim and unlikely chance. The bed of the Saskatchewan is pretty well known from thousands of people going up and down it in boats when the water is low and clear in the fall. You can practically rule out the possibility that somewhere in the foothills there may be a subterranean fault connecting the river bed to an underground lake from which an ogopogo might emerge by mistake.

Accordingly, Them Kjar's explanation of the Rocky Mountain House reports seems the most likely. Once in a while a big sturgeon also works his way up this river and they too might roughly fit the terrifying description given by the boys and Indians.

Remember when Winnipeg Bombers beat Ottawa Roughriders 18-16 in the Dominion grid final and a western army unit ran out on the field after the game, stealing the goal posts and football, too? That unit is still in eastern Canada, but the officer commanding, a Winnipegger, has retained that historic football and plans to take it with the unit when it is ordered overseas.

It's an interesting angle, but add to it talkies, radios and the great variety of sports we have now, compared to 25 years ago or more and you will have a pretty good answer to why so many seats are vacant in so many athletic parks.

"Naturally we'd do just what they say, but in the meantime we can't do a great deal. The situation is very uncertain."

Profits From Open Will Go To Red Cross

TORONTO, July 30.—Canadian war charities should profit handsomely through the forthcoming contest for the Canadian open golf championship which will be held at the Mississauga Golf club, Toronto, on August 6, 7 and 8. At a special meeting of the directors of the Royal Canadian Golf Association it was unanimously decided that the net profits of all the association's operations for 1942 be donated to the Canadian Red Cross Society.

The Canadian Open, with prize money of $3,600 in addition to the Seagram Gold cup, is the greatest profit-making activity of the association and the bulk of the funds to be donated will come from this three-day tournament at Mississauga. This gesture of the R.C.G.A. has been well received in golfdom and the Ontario Golf Association has adopted a similar resolution concerning its profits.

One of the features that should help build up the donation of the R.C.G.A. is the exhibition of trick and fancy shots to be given by Joe Kirkwood on Friday, Aug. 7. Kirkwood gave a similar demonstration at Hale America a few weeks ago at Chicago and his performance attracted a huge gallery.

With the assurance that many famous United States and Canadian golf stars will tee off in this year's Open, golfing fans who attend Mississauga will witness one of the keenest competitions in years. Highlighting the proposed list of starters is diminutive Ben Hogan, this year's leading money-winner who is making a determined assault on the all-time money-winning record now held by Sam Snead.

Hornets Trim Loop Leading Dodgers 4-2

Morgan Does Stellar Job Of Chucking

With Ralph Morgan doing excellent job on the mound, Hornets upset the league-leading Dodgers 4-2 at Renfrew park on Wednesday night and got right back into the scramble for a berth in the senior baseball play-offs.

Manager Al Bertram's boys showed their first real signs of batting rejuvenation when they jumped on Ed. Lindberg for five solid singles in the opening session and then kept pecking away for the rest of the game, collecting a total of 13 safeties.

It was Lindberg's first defeat of the year, the dependable Dodger lefty having chalked up three wins in a row until he ran into a genuine Hornets' nest last night. Ed. retired in the seventh in favor of Tony Conklin who cut the winners' hit allowance to one for the rest of the game.

In addition to holding the Dodgers in check all the way, Morgan had a perfect day with the willow, gathering in three hits in the same number of times at bat. He actually made five trips to the plate, but on two occasions was courteously awarded free transportation to first. One of Ralph's singles was good for three bases and scored Jim Kelly who had previously singled.

Five out of the first six men to face Lindberg in the opening canto singled, but the Hornets only netted two runs on the deal. Jim Kelly's and Art Soley's hits sending the counters across.

Only one Dodger was left on the paths in the first three innings, Morgan having complete control of the situation and he was getting good backing from the rest of the team.

In the fourth Ken Samis started off with a single, but was forced at second by Phil Bourson. Dick Latiff then drove the ball into deep right and pulled up at third. It was one of the hardest hit balls of the year and was a three-sacker in any man's league.

Bourasso of course scored on the wallop and Latiff ambled home himself on a wild pitch a few seconds later.

Dodgers filled the bases in the sixth on hits by Samis and Don McIntyre and a walk, but good defensive work by the Hornets prevented any scoring.

After Jack Buckler flied out to McIntyre in the seventh, Kelly singled and then Morgan came through with a three-ply wallop to centre. Soley followed with his third hit of the night and scored Ralph.

Len Gabel's catch of Tommy Brant's hard smash in the fifth was just about the finest effort of the year.

Aussie Games Coming?

U.S. Troops Soon Adopt New Sports

"Up there, Cazalet," call Australian football fans as player leaps high for ball. Cazalet was famous player in South Melbourne who was noted as a high flyer.

By BURTON BENJAMIN

NEW YORK, July 30.—American troops, fighting a global war on far-flung fronts, are likely to introduce an entirely new line of sports to this country when peace comes.

Hampered at the outset by lack of athletic equipment with which to play their own games in other lands, soldiers of the A.E.F. show quick aptitude in learning the games of their hosts. Cricket, Australian football and rugby may be American institutions after the war.

In Australia, troops felt keenly the lack of gridiron equipment. The New South Wales Baseball Association and the four football associations took energetic steps to cater to the visitors.

Baseball is not the dominant sport down under. It is played the year 'round, generally as a curtain-raiser to the important football games, which comprises Australia's chief sports fare.

Three types of football are played in Australia. Australian Rules prevail in Victoria, Tasmania, South and Western Australia, and to a lesser extent in New South Wales and Queensland. In the last two, as well as Victoria, Rugby Union rules are also in force. Rugby League is played in New South Wales and Queensland.

PLAYERS WEAR SHORTS, JERSEYS BUT NO ARMOR

The New South Wales and Victoria Rugby League and Rugby Union officials competed strongly for American adoption of their respective codes. Less than two months ago, two A.E.F. teams began training under the League code. In Victoria, it seemed likely that some American troops would also adopt the Australian Rules.

Under Australian Rules, 18 men make up a team. There are 15 on a team in Rugby Union, 13 in Rugby League.

An eggshaped ball, slightly larger than our football, is used in all three systems. In Rugby play, the ball may be carried. Under Australian rules it must be bounced every 10 yards.

Participants wear jerseys and shorts, no helmets or protective armor.

Under Australian Rules, which have the greatest following, there are four uprights at each end. The two inner ones are the highest and called "goal posts." The two outer ones are called "behind posts."

The ball must be kicked between the goal posts without being touched by an opposing player to score six points. If it is touched going through or gets between the uprights on either side—the behind posts—it scores one point.

A goal may be kicked by a punt, drop or place kick, from stand or run. Drop kicks are most popular. Dave McNamara, famous long distance Aussie kicker, holds the record with a boot of 85 yards.

Teams are made up of both professionals and amateurs, but the money players have a wage ceiling of two pounds per week, about $10 in American money. The war, however, has made the sport practically extinct except as played by service teams.

Returning war heroes have competed down under. Squadron Leader Keith Truscott, D. F. C., who shot down 18 enemy planes as a member of Paddy Finucayne's Spitfire circus, recently led a service team in a game in Melbourne.

CROWDS ARE PARTISAN; OFFICIALS ARE ENCLOSED

There is little wagering on football in peace time, but this does not dampen Australian spectators' ardor. In Melbourne, a crowd of 80,000 was not uncommon before the war.

A field umpire and two boundary umpires are in charge of the game. A partisanship reminiscent of dear old Brooklyn forced officials to build barbed wire tunnels and barracks to house and protect the arbiters during the fray.

American soldiers enthusiastically back this Australian sports program. Our troops found little to amuse them when they first arrived because of the Sunday laws, which severely restricted their holidays.

There were bitter complaints about the Wowsers, an uncomplimentary reference to straightlaced natives, who kept theatres and pubs closed.

Officials are working on a miniature Olympic Games scheduled tentatively for August.

Walk-Rites Defeat Pats In Softball Series Opener

Walk-Rites defeated Army and Navy Pats 4-0 at Kingsway Park on Wednesday night to go one game up in the playoffs for the north Alberta senior girls' softball title. The second in the best-of-three series is on Friday.

The Murray Saidman-coached aggregation took a two-run lead in the first frame and then counted singletons in both fourth and sixth innings.

Annabelle Thompson did the chucking for the Walk-Rites and limited the Pats to a pair of hits. She struck out two and gave one walk. Beryl Westbrook for the losers whiffed four and walked two.

In the first inning with one away Dolly Lane got a scratch infield hit and Jean Beatty followed with a three-bagger, later coming home on an error.

Isabel singled to left in the fourth and continued to third on an error, scoring later on a wild pitch.

Walk-Rites' final run was the result of Minnie Wilson's three-base hit ahead of a long fly to right field by Jean Barton.

The winners completed three double plays.

Ray (Sugar) Robinson, undefeated in 121 fights in succession, is picked by the experts to again take Sammy Angott when they meet in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

No Fighter Has Ever Been Able Beat Angott Twice

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP)—While Sammy Angott may lose a fight here and there along the way, no fighter who's ever licked him once has been able to make it stick. That's why Ray Robinson, the all-winning "sugar-man" from Harlem, may be grabbing at a hot one he can't hold in their Madison Square Garden shindig Friday night.

Anyway, the bookmakers rated Ray only a 1 to 2 choice yesterday even though he's supposed to be the hottest thing to come down the pike since Joe Louis.

Robinson took a ten-round decision from Sammy last fall.

So Friday's full is a return go. In the last six years, only seven fighters, including Robinson, have managed to take a decision from Sammy.

Two of these, Johnny Hutchinson and Fritzie Zivic, didn't come back for more. The other four tried it again—and they'd rather forget what happened to them.

Angott In Tough Spot

Showy Sugar Robinson Picked To Kayo Angott

NEW YORK, July 30.—Sammy Angott has pushed and pulled and hugged and tugged himself out of many a tough spot, but numerous sharp-shooters suspect he is conceding Ray Robinson a bit too much in their 10-round match at Madison Square Garden July 31.

Lightweight champion Angott is spotting Sugar Robinson speed, punch, weight, height, reach and age.

Spoiler Angott has climbed out of the resin innumerable times, but a lot of the boys have an idea he won't be able to pull himself together if dumped this trip by the Harlem jitterbug who fights in flurries and whose style is so pleasing to the trade.

They met in Philadelphia just a year ago. In the second round, Robinson nailed Angott with a right to the chin which sent the Washington, Pa., mauler sprawling to the canvas. It did not seem that Angott could pull himself back into one piece, but he managed to stagger to his pins and survive the pounding he took for the balance of the round.

ANGOTT WAGES UPHILL BATTLE

Starting with the third round, Angott began a terrific uphill fight and by the time the tenth and final round arrived had almost brought the contest to even terms.

Robinson got the decision, but veteran observers believed Angott most surely would have scored had the scrap been a 12-rounder. The Negro youth was thoroughly spent at the finish.

Angott's story is that he took Robinson for a nobody then and will be on his toes this time.

But he also will find that Robinson has come a long way since their last outing.

Robinson is the last fighter to win from Angott, who went on from there to win a clear claim to the lightweight leadership in a joust with Looney Lew Jenkins. Among less important starts, Angott twice repelled Bob Montgomery in non-title affairs and successfully defended his crown by grace of a highly debatable decision over Allie Stoltz.

Robinson, in the year since he fought Angott, moved out of the lightweight division into the welter.

ROBINSON WINS 121 FIGHTS IN ROW

He has the remarkable record of being undefeated in 121 bouts—89 as an amateur and 32 as a professional. As a simon-pure he knocked out 62, as a pro 25. He repelled Coast Guardsman Marty Servo in his last start—a sizzler.

Robinson will weigh around 142, Angott 135.

Sammy Angott has a way of making the other fellow look worse than he does, but it will take a lot of crowding, elbowing and heeling to make a show of showy Sugar Robinson.

Toronto Leafs Badly Shot For Coming Season

TORONTO, July 30.—(BUP)—The Stanley Cup reposes in Toronto tonight, but there are steadily rising doubts as to how long it will stay in the queen city. It was won by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League last spring, one of the most powerful hockey aggregations of the last few years.

But there isn't much left of the team that brought the Stanley Cup to Toronto after 10 barren years. The squad that won out is scattered to the four winds, and not even the proverbial king's horses and men could get it back together again.

The armed forces have claimed many Leaf players—among them the Metz brothers, Bob Goldham, Wally Stanowski, Pete Langelle, Johnny McCreedy and a new prospect, Bob Eddolls.

In addition, Sweeney Schriner has announced his retirement, and it's been common knowledge for some time now that Gordon Drillon won't be with the Leafs come next season.

However, the Leaf management, which washed its hands of Drillon during last season's play-offs, may reconsider its stand in the light of the team being wrecked by enlistments. Drillon is still in Toronto, working in a munitions factory—so apparently he doesn't hate the place as much as some people think. It's known that a couple of other N.H.L. clubs are after him.

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

NEW YORK, July 30.—(BUP)—Ancient Jack Doyle, the bespectacled little Irishman who is Broadway's "Wizard of Odds," revealed regretfully yesterday that he is offering no mid-season prices on the major league pennant races, for the first time in more than 30 years.

"I'm offering no prices," he said, "because we have a situation unprecedented in major league history. With the season little more than half over, both pennants are virtually conceded —to the Yankees and Dodgers.

"To offer prices, I would have to make the Yanks 1-5 favorites to win the American League pennant, and the Dodgers 1-4 in the National division. And if I laid one dollar against five that the Yanks don't win, or one against four that the Dodgers don't, I'd feel that I was throwing my money away. And I certainly would get no bets from the other angle."

The withered little man in the blue gabardine suit leaned back in his hotel lobby chair and added, "So I'll just take life easy for the rest of the summer. Oh sure, I'll get active again before the world series."

YANKS SLIGHT FAVORITES

WE ASKED who would be favored to win the series.

Doyle ran a finger reflectively through his sparse grayish-brown hair and opined that the Yanks will be favored over the Dodgers, "but only slightly." He predicted that this series will be the "grandest" ever staged, commanding more public attention than any previous classic. Also that the betting will be "light and heavy."

"The Dodgers this season are unquestionably a stronger and better balanced club than the one which had such a hard fight to take the national flag last year—the one that lost to the Yanks in the last series in five games," he said. "Moreover, everyone remembers that the Yanks got all the breaks in the last series. Fitzsimmons was hurt in the third game when he was hit by Russ's drive. And the Dodgers had the fourth game won when Mickey Owen dropped the third strike on Tommy Henrich—a strike that would have meant the final out.

"If Brooklyn had won that fourth game, evening the series at two games each, the psychological reaction would have been much different for both clubs—and the final story might have been much different. The argument against the effects of that dropped ball will be a great stimulant to public interest when the Yanks and Dodgers tangle again.

GREAT "ONE-TWO PUNCH"

BROADWAY'S 66-year-old price-maker, one of baseball's keenest students, emphasized that Joe Medwick is hitting in old-time form this season, and that his presence behind Pete Reiser in the batting order, now gives the Dodgers the greatest "one-two punch" baseball has had since Lou Gehrig followed Babe Ruth in the Yankee lineup.

That Reiser-Medwick combination is deadly, and the Yanks proved it by pitching to them more than any club in the American League, with the possible exception of Boston. The boy, this will be one Helluv series."

Meanwhile, Jack said, the game's chief interest is in the scrap fight among the Red Sox, Indians, Browns and Tigers for second place in the American League.

"And my chief interest," he concluded, "will be relaxation and golf until World Series time. No betting for me for the first time in more than 30 years."

Sports . . . Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP)—Babe in the woods: Jolly Cholly Grimm likes to tell this one about his old teammate, Babe Herman, who also has advanced to the comparatively dignified post of minor league manager: Seems that Herman was lamenting one day that his son was having difficulties in school . . . "Why don't you get the kid an encyclopedia, Babe?" suggested Church Klein. "Maybe it will help him in his studies." . . . "An encyclopedia!" growled Herman, "Nothing doing. Let him walk to school the way I used to."

Jackie Conn, Billy's kid brother, tells his fellow soldiers at New Cumberland (Pa.) reception centre, "I'd like to become a sergeant to get to boss my brother." . . . Local boy makes good: Lieut. Howard A. Sessler, the Arlington, Mass., bombardier who went with Jimmie Doolittle to leave calling cards at Tokyo, has been given a life membership at the Arlmont Country Club where he once was a caddy.

Today's star:

B. M. Atkinson, Jr., Louisville Times: "Williams wanted to be a fireman, Rosar a policeman and the next screwball probably will want to be a cowboy."

Von Lingle Mungo Now A Giant

Former Dodger Bad Man Comes Back 'To Show 'Em'

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP)—Since it is no trade secret that the Giants and Dodgers wish each other nothing more than a few broken bones at best, it comes as somewhat of a surprise to learn that the New Yorkers are about to cash in on a pitching arm which their old Flatbush feuding partners paid plenty to repair.

This soupbone is hung on the right shoulder of Van Lingle Mungo, the bad man from South Carolina. Now the Giants have dusted it off and brought it back to the big leagues from Minneapolis in the hope there's enough left in the old fireball to put them in the National League pennant parade down the stretch.

Van Mungo

At Minneapolis, Van Lingle won a neat total of 11 games in a manner which even led William Terry, who never was one of the bad man's sincerest boosters, to suggest he might prove a cure-all to the Giants' ailing elbow staff.

Manager Mel Ott put him in to pitch the first half of Wednesday's twin bill with the Cubs and the hero of the Battle of Havana still showed considerable speed on his fast one and a slow curve that the Cubs did not prescribe for their hitting averages.

MAKES FAIR START

Although Mungo was beaten, it wasn't his fault as much as the leaks in the fielding behind him and a little batting on the part of his mates. He gave up seven hits in seven innings and fanned four, including two third strikes that he curved right by Oliver McCullough.

If the Carolina storekeeper should produce for Ott's boys, Flatbush faces figure to become red indeed. Because a few months before the Dodgers gave up on Mungo in the spring of 1941, they sent him to a hospital for a repair job that necessitated an operation on his right shoulder.

The Dodgers footed the bill for this one and, those delicate carving jobs being what they are, the man represented a fair-sized bundle of hay.

"That kind of operation always takes about a year to get over results" Mungo explained yesterday as he greeted his new team-mates, who used to try to knock his ears off.

"My shoulder and arm only started to feel good again this summer. I figger I'm just beginning to feel that operation now. Guess I oughta thank the Dodgers for it."

It was as strange as seeing Mungo in a Giants' uniform to hear the Polo Grounds' customers cheering him. Van was always the hardest behaving ball player in the big leagues by a matter of several country blocks, enjoyed it to the hilt because he wants to "prove Brooklyn was wrong sending me to the minors."

"I'm not interested in alcohol any more, except for using it to make synthetic rubber," he pleads. "And I promise I'm not gonna bring about salary. I want to show 'em I can still pitch."

Good Times On Way Back For Older Players

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP)—New York Giants fish around in the minors and hook Van Mungo, who was pitching for Brooklyn when the Brooklyn Bridge was still a vine.

The Yankees toss out a net and catch Rollie Hemsley just before he goes over the dam into the pool of yesterday's stars.

The Reds grab Eric Tipton, who was a Connie Mack rookie three or four years ago, and the Pirates make a futile bid for Burgess Whitehead, who was a journeyman infielder with the Cards and Giants for years.

Say, how old is Hans Wagner, anyway?

Good times apparently are coming for the ex-major leaguers whose futures seemed to be pasted in scrapbooks. The major clubs just can't take a chance on young fellows already scouted by the army.

Tipton was rejected by the army because of bad ears, and it is assumed that Van Mungo and Whitehead and Hemsley aren't on the army prospect list right now, so the major clubs involved in the deals for them probably had one eye on 1943.

Anyway, the veterans are coming back from the minors, and we can just imagine our good friends Bill Brandt and Earl Hilligan beating the toms-toms for the National and American Leagues, respectively, wrecking their brains next spring to describe the rookies. They'll probably come up with something like this:

"The Pirates (or Yankees) present Joe Doakes, a 36-year-old youngster just up from Fort Smith. Doakes shows great promise, and is determined to stick this time. He was up for eight years with Washington and six with Detroit, but was sent back for further seasoning."

ASSEMBLY LINES ROLLING AT LAST

All-Welded Tanks Now Pour Out In Trainload Lots

Lieut. Thomas C. Griffin, Tokyo raid hero, enjoys honorary smack from Mrs. Josephine Despres, widow of sailor lost in Coral Sea battle, at Ferndale, Mich., war plant.

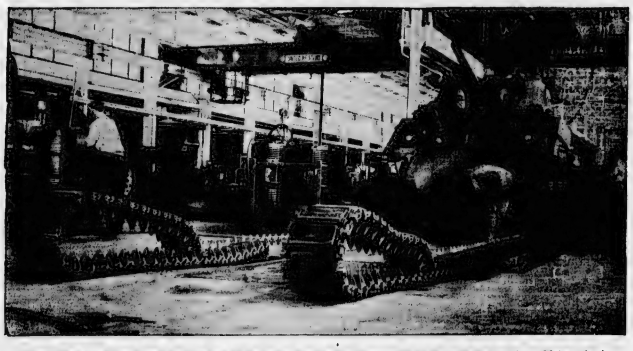

Six months ago there was a rolling field where the accompanying pictures were taken. Today General Motors have a roaring tank factory built, equipped and rolling full speed on that field. It is a story of almost miraculous accomplishment that it is being duplicated in many other places and different branches of war industry throughout the United States and Canada. The medium tanks shown here feature improved fire power, improved location of the 75-mm gun in a turret revolving in a complete circle, high manoeuverability, very heavy armor plate and an all-welded construction. These pictures and captions were reviewed by the U.S. War Department.

Lots of tanks, moving on three assembly lines.

Laying the track for a new tank is one of the most spectacular operations in the building of these 30-ton giants.

Outmatches Germany's Best

British Spitfires have blasted into hot air the legend of the Focke-Wulf 190, the new Nazi fighter which was highly touted as superior to anything possessed by the Allied Nations. Allied fighters met them in combat, July 26, and shot down nine, losing only three of their own. A Polish squadron bagged five of them and two Canadian squadrons are credited with one destroyed, one probable and at least three damaged. Germany's new plane is extremely fast and carries at least six machine-guns. It is powered by an air-cooled engine developing up to 2,000 h.p. It was Germany's answer to Britain's Spitfire.

Lieutenant Cmdr. W. E. S. Briggs, R.C.N.V.R., whose seamanship saved the torpedoed tanker Tachee, received the Distinguished Service Cross from the King at a recent investiture at Buckingham Palace. He won the award while in command of H.M.C.S. Orillia last winter, when the Canadian corvette helped the disabled tanker into a British port, saving a $1,000,000 cargo of oil.

Medium and light tanks just received from U.S. are serviced and put into fighting shape by Australian mechanics. Aussies are training men to man them.

Camera Brings Home The Proof

First photograph of its kind shows a doomed Japanese destroyer just before it plunged beneath the waves. It was taken through the periscope of the U.S. submarine which torpedoed the vessel. Note the "rising sun" insignia on the gun turret, and the two crewmen (circled) scrambling over the conning tower. The marks on the left and the line in centre are periscope etchings.

Released, Wants To Enlist

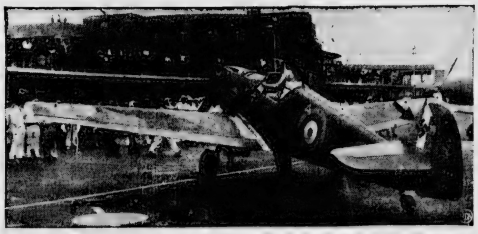

"I'm looking forward to the day when he'll be well enough to join the army. Then we can be a real military family." William T. Lawson's wife was straight and slim in her uniform, at her husband's bedside. She was on special leave from her duties as a driver for the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps in Montreal, had rushed to Toronto when she heard he had been released from the Don jail. The Toronto ex-school trustee had been held on the grounds of Communistic activities, under Defence of Canada Regulations. They hadn't seen each other in two years, Lawson said. When he heard that the R.C.M.P. had a warrant for his arrest, around the time it was first issued, he got out of the way.

Messerschmidt—Joins U.S. Fight

Here's one for the books—a German Messerschmidt (M.E. 109) on the apron at La Guardia Field, New York. But, everything's okay. The plane, shot down over England, will tour the United States with American-built ships to help boost the sale of war bonds and stamps. The British painted the R.A.F. insignia on the plane and added the swastika, arrow, making it small enough so it won't attract the attention of Allied anti-aircraft gunners and patrol planes.

BANNERS FLYING

By Mary Raymond

The Colton' party for their daughter Jan falls a few nights after Pearl Harbor. Patriotic friends send regrets to her. Patriotic friends send regrets to reprimand the wealthy Mrs. Colton for bad taste in wartime, but Christie, Jan's twin sister, persuades them to come to save Jan embarrassment. At the party are Bart Sanderson, Christie's fiance, who is home on leave, and Stephen Marston, the young man Jan is in love with. Christie meets Stephen for the first time since months before, she had flown him, seriously injured, to a hospital. Jan appears to be jealous of Christie.

CHAPTER VII

It was around noon next day when Christie opened the door to Jan's room.

"Awake, Jan?"

Janet was sitting up in bed, a tray at her back, a cigaret in her hand. "I was never more wide awake in my life," she said.

Christie stood smiling down at her. "It's funny seeing you smoke. You never did before."

"A cigaret helps sometimes."

"Don't pull a nervous wreck business, Jan. That comes only after a whole season of parties. Didn't you have a good time?"

"I had a miserable time," Jan answered. "You should know that."

"No," Christie said, "I didn't. I'm sorry. What went wrong?"

"Stephen said the party was as senseless as money could make it, and he wondered how many Defense Bonds it really cost."

"Your Stephen has atrocious manners—"

"My Stephen!" Janet flared. "My Stephen?"

"I don't know what is the matter with you," Christie said, "and I haven't time to find out. I came to tell you Bart and I are married. We decided to skip all the fuss. We just walked over to a minister's and—"

"Christie!" Jan was out of bed, flinging her arms around her sister. Color flamed in her cheeks.

"You and Bart—what? Christie, you're joking!"

"I've lassoed him up tight with a wedding rope."

Jan sat down on the edge of the bed, her eyes bright with excitement. "Oh, Christie, why didn't you say so in the first place?"

"What on earth? What difference—"

"Oh, nothing. Christie, I'm so happy—happy for you and Bart."

"Well," Christie marveled, "it's nice you're pleased. Though I really didn't know Bart rated so high with you. Now, I've got to let Mother and Dad know I've made them in-laws."

"Where's Bart?"

"Downstairs, pacing the rug, and watching the clock. Our honeymoon hours are flying. Bart has to report on Monday. Uncle Sam doesn't play favorites, not even with brides and grooms. But we have had a break. Bart's been transferred to our nearest flying field."

"You and Bart can take it," Jan said softly. "He'll be a grand soldier and you'll be a grand soldier's wife. How about smoking a pipe of peace with me?" She held out a cigaret and Christie took it, thoughtfully.

"We're at war, Jan? I didn't know."

"I was. With you, with the world. I'm ashamed, Christie, I'm not brave like you. All I want is to be happy and I'm afraid I never will."

Christie came over, placed her hands on the thin young shoulders and gazed down into the shadowed face.

"We've got to keep our hearts high and banners flying, Jan, you too. Now, get dressed and come down to give your brother-in-law a proper kiss."

"Okay," Jan said sweetly. "But what's the rush? I sort of thought I'd be seeing him around."

Bart was having another furlough. Christie had met him at the train. Two months of being Mrs. Bart had given her a mature, young married air, she honed.

En route from the train, she had said, mysteriously: "I've got to stop at this place, Bart. Come up with me."

Bart followed her up the two flights of apartment stairs. The apartment was a facsimile of a score of others about town. Presentable and commonplace. An elevator was grinding to a stop somewhere in its well. Christie's feet were impatiently flying along the stairs. "Let's don't wait. This is quicker."

On the third floor, she inserted a key in a door. "I didn't have a welcome mat, but just the same I'm glad to invite you in."

"What's this?" Bart asked. "One of your committee rooms?"

"Committee rooms! It's your new home!"

Suddenly, Christie flung her arms about Bart. "Carry me in. For luck."

Still with that amazed look in his eyes, Bart lifted her in his arms and still holding her, looked about.

It was a small living room. The walls were a grey-blue flowered in white. Soft blue draperies were at the windows over the tie-back white curtains. Rugs and furniture and pictures made a harmonious blend.

"You mean you live here?" Bart asked.

"We live here," Christie corrected. "That is, when you have leaves."

"That won't be so very often." Bart said slowly. "And then, I might be transferred. It was just luck getting so near home at first."

"Bart," Christie breathed, her eyes dark with disappointment. "You don't like it."

"Of course I do, Christie. It's a nice place. But I can't see why you left your own home. Surely it's big enough. I seem to remember feeling swallowed up in all that space."

"It wasn't my own home any more," Christie said. "I'm an army man's wife now."

"And you felt you had to change your way of living straight off—to fit the changed status?"

Their eyes met without smiling.

"Yes," Christie said. "I wanted to start living like one."

"I see." Bart spoke stiffly, in the tone of one who didn't see at all. He had liked to think of Christie, secure, protected under the parental roof. It was not that he wanted favors. He detested them. But he wanted to feel easy about his young wife while he was off taking risks. What earthly good was there in barging out and starting house-keeping alone? Certainly, when he came home for good, he and Christie must get off to themselves. But this was being foolish, even dramatic. He didn't like it.

Christie thought unhappily: I worked so hard to get it ready for a surprise. I was so thrilled about it and Bart thinks it was all a pose.

"I'm sorry, darling." Bart was holding her close, kissing her. "It's really a swell little place. But I hate the thought of you staying here alone."

"I'll manage fine. It will be good for me, Christie said. Her voice was hollow, drained of exultation. "We're invited to have dinner with the folks."

"Good enough," Bart replied. "I thought maybe you were planning to show me some plain and fancy cooking."

The pantry was stocked and the ice box was filled. Christie had hoped Bart would say: "Let's stay home and try out the new stove."

But he hadn't. He had said "good enough." He thought rich Christie Colton was putting on an act, telling the world she was going to be brave and live on a soldier's salary. What Bart didn't know was that she loved all this.

As they left the elevator they came face to face with Stephen Marston.

"Well, think of meeting you two here," he drawled. "Slumming?"

"We live here." Christie answered, an edge to her voice.

"Not really." He was staring at her in amazement. He was bareheaded and he looked very handsome with the sun falling on his blond hair, his blue eyes bright with interest.

"I live here, too" he said. "My mother and I. May we call?"

"Please do." Christie's eyes traveled to Bart's immobile face. Bart was acting rude. Very rude. "It's nice we're neighbors," she added impulsively.

It was after they had driven off that Bart spoke: "Do you have to be so all-fired nice to that fellow? Wasn't saying his life enough?"

"You don't like him." Christie said slowly.

"I don't like him at all," Bart answered.

Bayonets Advocated For Jap Invaders

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP)—Modern warfare with its tanks and bombing planes won't work in the Aleutians but the old-fashioned bayonet will, says Harold McCracken, archaeologist and explorer who spent years in the strategic islands. Quality Of Cream Is Deteriorating

With a noticeable deterioration in the quality of Alberta cream, department of agriculture officials are urging that farmers and dairymen pay more attention to the three fundamentals of quality cream production.

Recent cream receipts show that the quality is six per cent less special than in the same period of 1941.

Creamery inspectors have also reported that the quality of cream has been lowering.

In June, 1942, only 82 per cent scored first grade as against 88 per cent for the whole of 1941.

Cleanliness, cooling and frequent marketing are the three fundamentals of quality cream production.

Man Found Dead South Side Home

Donald Ferguson, 11220 78 avenue, was found dead in his home by a neighbor Wednesday afternoon. Deceased was 78 years old and lived alone.

After he was found lying in bed by O. P. Marks, 11214 78 avenue, Dr. E. A. Braithwaite, after made a report to Provincial Coroner William Aberhart, as minister of education.

In his report Mr. Sullivan stated there was no evidence to support the changes and recommended that Kozior be reinstated.

Under the terms of the School act, where charges are not proved against a teacher he must be reinstated.

J. W. Barnett, general secretary of the Alberta Teachers' Association, acted for Kozior in the case.

May Reinstate Principal Of Mundare School

Department of education officials intimated Thursday that Carl Kozior, principal of Mundare high school, probably will be re-instated after an investigation by the department, of four charges brought against him by the Mundare school board.

Kozior was dismissed last month because the board charged he had failed to report an epidemic of measles in the school; that he would not submit to a medical examination by a doctor of the board's own choosing; that he persuaded teachers who wanted to strike not to meet the board, and that he refused to open the school the day the staff went on strike.

The case was investigated by D. M. Sullivan, inspector of schools, and after a letter made a report to Premier William Aberhart, as minister of education.

TCA Employs 300 Women In Many Branches

More than 300 women are now engaged by Trans Canada Air Lines in various types of work, O. T. Larson, vice president, T.C.A., stated on his arrival here Thursday in the course of an inspection trip.

When war broke out there was not a single woman on the staff, with the exception of air hostesses he said, but the drain of man-power to the services has made it necessary to take on women.

They are employed in shops, at ticket counters, in passenger handling at airports, as cabin cleaners, he said, and more will be employed to release young men in the service for Canada's armed forces. He said that women have not been used in flight operations.

Mr. Larson, commenting on the construction of the administration building at the Edmonton airport, said the city was to be congratulated on this enterprise. "It was badly needed, and its provision will complete the equipment of Edmonton as a great air terminal." air terminal.

He said the T.C.A. was now geared to capacity with the nation's war effort, and that the company's efforts were directed on that effort rather than on commercial expansion.

THE QUESTION

Should the ban on the Communist party be lifted?

THE ANSWERS

LEN LORDEN, salesman: Much water has run under many bridges since the ban on the Communist party was imposed. Millions of Russians have died that Canada might be spared the horrors of enslavement under Nazi rule. The majority of Canadians are hoping that our valiant Soviet allies will not be further insulted by keeping this ban on the Communist party.

HARRY JACOBS, carpenter: The British house of commons still seats a Communist member. There is simply no reason for continuing the ban on the party here. The ban should be lifted and men held in internment camps should be released.

FRED HOPKINS, clerk: I can see no good reason why the ban should be maintained. There may have been reason for the ban at the start of the war. I see none now.

Fourteen Cases Are Dealt With In Police Court

Fourteen out of 33 cases that appeared on Thursday's police court docket were disposed of during the morning sitting, Police Magistrate Harold Hawe, K.C., presided.

Thomas Shaw who last week pleaded guilty to four charges, two of theft and two of shopbreaking, was sentenced to two years at Prince Albert on each charge with the sentences to run concurrently. The four sentences are also to run in concurrence with a two-year sentence he received at Stony Plain earlier in July on a charge of shopbreaking.

Two persons who pleaded guilty to charges of drunkenness each were fined $20 and costs and a third was fined $5 and costs for creating a disturbance while under the influence of liquor.

MOTORISTS FINED

Three motorists were fined for operating motor vehicles with faulty brakes to bring the total "inadequate brake" convictions in the past month to 18. They were Eric Clintberg, Boyle; Joseph Anhal, Waskatenau; and Thomas C. McConaghy, of Bugby. Each paid a fine of $2 and costs.

G. E. McPherson, Edmonton, was fined $5 and costs for failing to report an accident.

Two of the remaining charges handled Thursday afternoon were dismissed and two were adjourned.

How Well Do You See?

By JACKSON BROS., Optometrists

Everyone wants to see well. Everyone wants good eyes, and not just for today, but eyes which will carry him through his daily tasts and remain workable for a lifetime. But not everyone realizes how important this desire is. Not everyone recognizes that more than vision is at stake. Yet such is the case. Eye strain is more than muscle strain: it is nerve strain. And the nerve strain ordinarily originated in the eyes has far reaching manifestations. It is not surprising that eye strain results in headaches. But this is only a small part of the story.

An eminent authority states: "Our bodies are indeed odd things. There may be something wrong in one organ that produces strange and unusual symptoms—not in the organ itself—but in some part of the body, perhaps remote from the diseased or irritated organ. For instance, who ever thinks about indigestion or backache as being due to eye strain. And still such is the actual case. There are few derangements indeed that have such far reaching effects on the nervous system, digestive system, and on the general physical condition as defective eyesight. And all these difficulties are in addition to being unable to see easily, clearly and normally."

Science know these facts, but the average individual has, unfortunately remained ignorant of them. It is the Optometrist's duty to inform those who may be suffering needless handicap, of the truth which may mean so much to them and our message to all such, is this: Have your eyes examined at regular intervals, so as to catch any deficiencies in their earliest stages.

Lloyds Of London Offers Subscribers Of Bulletin $5,000 Policy For $1 Fee

By TOM SHANDRO

Lloyds of London, an insurance firm recognized the world over as willing to risk policies on everything insurable, whatever the odds, is demonstrating its generosity by offering to subscribers of The Edmonton Bulletin and their families a $5,000 policy for the sum of $1 per year.

The comparative figures, policy and premium, seem incredible. It sounds fantastic and well nigh impossible, but Lloyds of London, working in co-operation with The Bulletin have made the arrangement possible.

They are making it possible for every normal pedestrian, every cyclist and every motorist or passenger to enjoy a sense of financial security while walking, cycling, driving or riding.

FOR BULLETIN READERS

The policy is being offered to subscribers to The Bulletin in the following manner. To each person who is a regular subscriber to Edmonton's home owned paper and who is between 16 and 60 years of age, Lloyds of London will offer this policy immediately upon payment of $1 which constitutes one year's premium.

All the reader has to do is to pay the dollar to the Insurance Division of the Circulation Department, Edmonton Bulletin, together with assurance that he is planning upon continuing to be a regular subscriber for at least another year.

A non-subscriber can, by one stroke of the pen, complete a double-barrelled accomplishment that will not only give him financial protection every time he walks or travels, but will give him and members of his family much enjoyment through reading Edmonton's only home owned daily paper and the only paper that offers its readers three news services.

Because of this fact, The Bulletin which is always in the forefront in service to subscribers, offers this Travel and Pedestrian Accident Insurance at amazingly low cost through Lloyds of London, famed British Underwriters.

The policy is as easy to obtain as the application blank, found elsewhere on this page, indicates. No physical examination is needed. No "red-tape" is involved. No strings are attached to the policy.

It is merely a service The Bulletin is offering to its subscribers through Lloyds of London. This firm will take care of your family or pay you for time lost in a travel or pedestrian accident, according to the provisions of the policy.

Getting Around
Jack DeLong

Announcement by Mayor John W. Fry that the special city relief department will be closed on August 31 would under different circumstances be cause for unrestrained rejoicing. But while it is a good thing that relief on a mass scale is no longer necessary the fact that it required a war of unparalleled magnitude to bring this condition about is not one that is cause for any deep satisfaction.

Edmonton's experience was of course, only typical of all other Canadian and American cities. But in those seemingly endless years of depression between 1929 and the start of the present war, relief became every city's biggest "business."

And it was a "business" of humiliation and misery unprecedented in the history of this new country of Canada and the young, powerful democracy of the United States.

Gas Use Cut 27 Per Cent. In 2 Months

Alberta's car and truck operators used 27 per cent less gasoline during April and May 1942, than they did during the same months the year previous, it was revealed by the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Motor Association Thursday.

In April 1941 the motorists and truckers consumed 4,586,156 gallons of the precious fuel along Alberta's highways and city streets, but in April this year the total consumption was 3,390,148 gallons.

In May the figures are 4,938,932 last year and 3,603,303 this year.

This constitutes a reduction of about 27 per cent. within one year.

Conversion of gasoline for farm machinery, aviation and other purposes connected with war work is not included in the above figures.

Gas Company Asks Authority For Extensions

Seeking to prevent threatened cessation of Edmonton's urgently required building boom, Edmonton's gas company is making a blanket application to Ottawa with respect to the recently announced restrictions on gas service extensions to new homes on existing gas lines.

The company is seeking permission to make the extensions to newly built homes, with gas service; to homes in process of building at the present time, and also to homes which may be built in the near future.

ASK FOR NAMES

As a result, the company is appealing to Edmonton citizens who have newly built homes lacking gas service, who are planning to build homes, or are building homes at the present time, to give their names immediately to the gas company so that the true situation may be presented to the Wartime Industries Control Board.

Recently the board issued an order barring gas service extensions to homes for which foundations were not laid prior to July 1, 1942.

The utility company concerned, however, is permitted to make an application to the board for relaxation of the order under special circumstances.

C.N.R. Appoints Terminal Agent

Charles Dixon has been appointed terminal agent for the Canadian National Express at Edmonton, it was announced by G. E. Bellerose, general manager, Montreal. He replaces John A. McDonald who was transferred to Winnipeg as traffic supervisor.

Mr. Dixon was born at Halifax in 1883, and entered the service of the express company as a wagonman at Edmonton in 1918 and held various positions until he was appointed foreman 10 years later.

Superintendent Of Income Tax Resigns Post

Resignation of Edward C. Shaughnessy, C.A., from his provincial government positions as superintendent of the income tax branch and acting supervisor of the co-operative credits branch, was announced Thursday by Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer. Mr. Shaughnessy had been superintendent of income tax for the last six years, and his other post was taken over two months ago when Kenneth J. Hawkins was granted leave of absence to join the R.C.A.F. in an administrative capacity.

Mr. Shaughnessy's resignation is effective as from Aug. 8, on which date he will be given his annual three weeks' vacation, and will sever his connection with the government service on Aug. 31.

Mr. Low also announced that Gordon W. Northfield, assistant superintendent of the income tax branch, would be in acting head, and that H. J. Woodman, secretary to the provincial treasurer's department, would carry on as acting head of the co-operative credits branch.

It was pointed out that the government was accepting Mr. Shaughnessy's resignation "with profound regret," and the only reason for its acceptance was that work of the branch would be wound up in view of the handing over by the province of the entire field of income taxation to the Dominion government.

VACATING FIELD

Under an agreement reached earlier this year, the province, along with other provinces, agreed to vacate the income tax field for the duration of the war and for one year after. Therefore, this service is to be wound up at the earliest possible moment by the province.

"Mr. Shaughnessy has been a valuable, efficient and painstaking official," said Mr. Low. "He has done much good work and his services will be missed."

Mr. Low declared that the Dominion government had offered to absorb the income tax branch employees, totalling 40. They would be placed in either the Edmonton or Calgary Dominion income tax branch offices. Employees preferring to remain in the provincial service would be given the opportunity to do so, and would be absorbed in various departments.

Employees would be transferred, or absorbed, as the work on which they are at present engaged, is completed. Arrears in tax payments are being collected and it is expected that it will be June 1, 1943 before the work is finally completed and the branch closed.

FUTURE PLANS

Asked regarding his future plans, Mr. Shaughnessy said he proposed to return to private practice of accountancy after his holidays, and will open an office in this city.

Born at Toronto, he embarked on an accountancy career when he was apprenticed to the firm of Wilton C. Eddis and Sons. He came to this city in 1908. Subsequently he joined the staff of George A. Touche and Company. Ltd., chartered accountants. His examinations to qualify as a chartered accountant were taken in Alberta.

After serving for some time in the provincial auditor's branch under James C. Thompson, now of Montreal, Mr. Shaughnessy, in 1933, resigned to enter private practice at Drumheller.

In June, 1935, he was invited by the provincial government to rejoin the service, which he did and was appointed manager of the Calgary office of the income tax branch.

APPOINTED IN 1936

He was appointed superintendent of income tax in September, 1936.

When the province instituted its sales tax, and established a branch for its administration, Mr. Shaughnessy was named as its administrative head. At that time the combined income and sales tax branches had a staff of 80. The sales tax was revoked after one years' operation and the branch discontinued.

Always interested in community welfare work, Mr. Shaughnessy is a past president of the Edmonton Kinsmen Club and a past vice-president of the Junior Rugby League for many years he was active in tennis and was a prominent player here and at Drumheller. Also, he is a past president of the Alberta Turbercular Association.

Liberals Study By-Election Plans

Plans for the provincial by-election will be discussed at a meeting of the general executive of the Edmonton Provincial Liberal Association at the I.O.O.F. hall, 103 street, at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Recommendation that a convention be called shortly for the purpose of selecting a candidate to contest the seat left vacant by the death of D. M. Duggan last spring, will be submitted to the meeting by the executive committee.

Neil D. Maclean, K.C., president of the association, will preside, and Charles H. Grant, K.C., will act as secretary.

Put Children To Work During Their Vacation

In Grandparents' Day Every Child Was Given Household Chores and Had to Get Them Done

—By DOROTHY DIX

The war has made us conscious of what a vast amount of energy we were wasting in not using our womanpower. This has been harnessed to jobs, and now hundreds of thousands of women who used to spend their spare time embroidering doilies, or playing bridge, or dawdling around department stores, pricing the finery they didn't have the money to buy, are working in munition plants, or making precision tools, or helping construct airplanes, or doing any other kind of labor that is needed.

Gone is the old idea that woman's place in the world was just to be a parlor ornament. Gone also is the theory that while a woman can work eighteen hours a day in her home without turning a hair, she can't stand a 6-hour shift in a factory, and that, anyway, there is some peculiarity about a woman's mind that makes a blueprint an insoluble mystery to her, yet enables her to work out a perforated paper pattern at sight.

We have found out that, barring feats of physical strength, there isn't much that the average man can do that his wife and sisters and aunts can't do just as well. Also, maybe civilization would have been a lot "forwarder," as old-fashioned folks used to say, if women had taken an active hand in building it up instead of sitting on the sidelines and criticizing the way men did it.

There is still another source of energy that we are wasting, and that is childpower, and it is to that I wish to call attention in the vacation season. From the doors of every school house in the land has come a veritable flood of youth and vitality and restlessness and curiosity with a driving necessity to be up and doing something, that has inundated every home having youngsters in it and left it practically a wreck.

DREAD HOLIDAY SEASON

Mothers dread the holiday season as they would a combined invasion by the Japs and the Nazis, for well they know that the cry of: "Mother! what will I do next?" "Mother! can't I go to Johnny's?" "Mother! give me a dime for an ice cream cone" will ring perpetually in their ears, and that they will be worn to a frazzle trying to keep their bored children interested and amused.

Our grandparents had a word for it. It was WORK. In those simple days, before the law decided it knew better how to rear children than their parents do, every child had some household chores that it had to perform and that occupied part of its time, and furnished it an outlet for some of its superfluous energy.

Mothers taught their little daughters how to cook and sew and wash and iron and take care of the baby. Fathers showed their boys how to mend the fence and paint the barn and mow the lawn and cut the grass, and lend a hand at the thousand and one odd jobs that keep a home neat and tidy.

This got a lot of work done, and it not only kept the parents from being physical wrecks by the end of the summer, but it kept the youngsters happy and contented. For children enjoy doing constructive work that shows results, and they have pride when they are made to feel that they are important and useful members of the family unit.

When Mother boasts that Sally cooked the dinner and Father brags that Johnny washes the car better than they do at the garage, the kids get a keener thrill out of it than they do out of watching some make-believe hero pull off a stunt in the movies. They have had their time filled in for them pleasantly and profitably. They have been taught habits of industry and responsibility. And they have acquired a skill that will be useful to them as long as they live.

So I urge all the poor, harassed mothers who are working themselves to death, cooking and cleaning, and making sandwiches, and getting up picnics, and trying to think of different ways to amuse their children during vacation, to call a halt on their own activities and turn the job over to the youngsters. Let them go under their own power. Let them use up some of their superfluous energy in sweeping and dusting and preparing meals. They will enjoy it, and Mother won't be a candidate for a sanatorium at the end of the summer.

McCoy Health Service

Anyone who glances over medical books will be impressed with the fact that a large number of diseases are contagious. You may have been quarantined yourself, or know of friends who have been. The idea that disease is catching is often brought out in magazines devoted to health, in books, and in the daily papers.

When we have so much attention brought to the fact that disease is contagious, one sometimes wonders whether or not health is not also contagious. Of course it is! Health is one of the most "catching" states of being. Whenever you come close to a person in glorious health you immediately get a feeling of vigor, strength, power, energy and life, and immediately you feel more alive and healthy yourself and have a desire to make yourself better.

Health is even more "catching" than disease for we can only become infected with disease when the resistance is low, but we can almost always take on a little more health. One book on psychology states that no one is afraid of too much health. It is impossible to conceive of too much health. The more health you have, the better and the more you will inspire others. If you are really on tip-toe with abundant health, other people will be attracted to you. They cannot help it. Health attracts because it is good, it is the natural condition.

Some people fear a crowd on account of the idea of catching disease germs, yet there is always some person in every crowd who has every evidence of health, that is, a good skin, clear eyes, a vigorous body and a good natured smile. His health is contagious.

Allow yourself to become thoroughly infected with health instead of thinking that you are contracting disease. Substitute the positive suggestion to yourself that you are enjoying health. Be healthy, yourself, so that you can "give it to others." Think about health—hold the idea of perfect health in your mind; talk about health—find out from healthy people what makes them healthy. "And in the degree that you realize this wholesomeness, this abounding health and strength in yourself, you will carry it to all with whom you come in contact, for we must remember that health is contagious as well as disease." This is from a very excellent book by Ralph Waldo Trine, called "In Tune with the Infinite." The same idea is brought out in a book entitled "The Essentials of Healthful Living," by Sadler, when he writes: "Disease, generally speaking, has to be cultivated, but health is contagious."

An epidemic of health! Now there is an uplifting idea for you to think about. Imagine an epidemic of overflowing health sweeping over the world, infecting millions, spreading to every town and city. It is said that one person with an infectious disease will start an epidemic which will fly over a whole city. Why not start your own epidemic of health? Try to be healthful and give healthful vibrations to everyone you meet.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It is always distressing to a young parent to discover, once the dressing is removed, that the baby's navel is pale and protruding. The mother may be quite unaware that a number of babies come into the world in this "condition" state and that it may take some weeks or months before the split in the abdominal muscle comes properly. This should take place before birth but when it does not it is beside the point to imagine that the baby ruptured himself by crying or that failure to keep a tight band on him was responsible for it.

DON'T BLAME NURSE

One mother said she blamed the nurse at the hospital who removed the binder the tenth day and when she brought the baby home she found it had been ruptured. She hated to talk about it to the doctor for she felt him to blame also, in not advising the nurse.

This attitude grows out of the one which prevailed some years ago when binders were kept on for weeks or months after baby was born. Usually these deteriorated into a wrinkled mass, either tightly or loosely hung about the baby's middle.

The binder now serves but one purpose. It holds the navel dressing in place until the stump of the umbilical cord drops off. After that the baby is on his own and holds up his own back and his stomach muscles support themselves without artificial aid.

When the baby comes into the world with a split abdominal muscle which allows the intestines to force a protrusion, this does show up more when the baby cries, giving the impression that crying may have caused it.

The danger of an umbilical hernia is that sections of the intestine may slip between the split edges of the muscle and become strangulated there. To prevent any such dire happening the edges of the muscle are folded over the navel and taped into place. This is best done by a doctor. The tub baths must be replaced by sponge baths so that the adhesive bands will not become wet and useless.

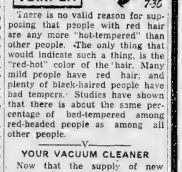

Each month, when the mother makes her regular visit to the doctor, he can remove and replace the tape, thus continuing until the navel no longer protrudes.

No one can say how long it will take for the split to unite, dependent as it is on the initial size of the opening. But as one mother put it aptly, "I just have to admit it is my hard luck the baby had this misfortune," rather than as others say, "I blame the doctor."

Our leaflet on, "The First Six Weeks," offers suggestions on how to set baby off on the right foot. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Debunker

There is no valid reason for supposing that people with red hair are any more "hot-tempered" than other people. The only thing that would indicate such a thing, is the "red-hot" color of the hair. Many mild people have red hair, and plenty of black-haired people have bad tempers. Studies have shown that there is about the same percentage of bed-tempered among red-headed people as among all other people.

YOUR VACUUM CLEANER

Now that the supply of new vacuum cleaners is limited, your old cleaner, if working, takes on added value. So check it. Periodical checks and adjustments by a reliable service man will help to lengthen its life and give you most efficient use. Intelligent care on your own part is important, too. So don't neglect emptying the dust bag after each using—brush out all the clinging dust; don't expect it to pick up everything—sharp, hard particles may damage it; don't wind the electric cord around sharp surfaces that will cut or fray the covering; step on cord, drag along floor, or disconnect by pulling on cord instead of grasping plug. Do store your cleaner in a proper place where it will be protected from dust, as well as knocks.

LONDON — (CP) — The war has brought about a shortage of chorus girls. Producer Jack Hylton said he had two plays he couldn't put on because of difficulty in casting and added only 25 per cent of chorus girl applicants are suitable these days.

NEATNESS SHOWS MENTAL ALERTNESS

A wisp of hair straggling over the forehead can be very fetching in a young girl with an upturned nose. But it will make an older woman look plain dowdy, and, worse yet, terribly weary and worn. The mature person's attractiveness is in direct proportion to her neatness and careful grooming. These say, and emphatically, that her years rest lightly on her physique and that her spirit is just as much alive as her mind—which is very likely to be more alert, acute, active and competent than ever before in her lifetime. She should not belie it by careless, too-tired-to-bother habits of dress and grooming.

Trail Riders At Banff Name New Officers

BANFF, Alta., July 30.—"These mountains are the playground of Americans as well as Canadians, and in these stressful times their value for health-giving recreation becomes doubly important." in these words, Marshall H. Diverty of Woodbury, N.J., keynoted the gala pow-wow held on the grounds of the Banff Springs hotel on Wednesday evening. The pow-wow brought to a close the 18th annual outing of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies.

Mr. Diverty was named president of the international association of horsemen and nature lovers, succeeding Mr. H. Travers Coleman of Vancouver, B.C., who this year led the riders on their five-day cavalcade.

Mrs. Kate Keith of Toronto, and Mrs. Helga Janna of Pasadena, Calif., assisted President Coleman in greeting Johnny Bears-Paw, in the various languages of the United Nations.

Women riders outnumbered men this year, and a shortage of guides and wranglers gave 13-year-old Donna Johnson her long-dreamed-of chance to show her skill.

Two new vice-presidents were named. Dr. A. T. Gillespie of Fort William, and Mrs. H. Travers Coleman of Vancouver.

Jane Diverty, Woodbury, N.J., and Dr. Howard Spohn, Vancouver, were added to the executive committee, and the riders reiterated their perennial secretary-treasurer, J. G. Murray Gibson, Montreal, and their western secretary, J. S. Crossby, Banff.

Added to the council were Dr. C. W. Skinner, Regina; Miss Jean Stewart, Fort William, Ont.; Miss Pat Rolph, Toronto; Miss Colena Nickell, Calgary; Miss Anne Baetjer, Baltimore, and Miss Ethel Knight, Banff.

Jarvis Airwomen Have Fun During Their Leisure Time

By MARGARET ECKER

JARVIS, Ont., July 30—(CP)—Evening on an R.C.A.F. station, and what do the airwomen do on their evenings off? They have a lot of fun, if Jarvis is an example; even more fun, probably, than when they were civilian working girls or living quietly at home.

The airwomen here certainly did not look regimented or standardized after dinner. They appeared suddenly in cute play suits and bright slacks with little resemblance to the young women who had gone about their duties at No. 1 Bombing and Gunnery school earlier in the day.

From 6.30 to 7.30 p.m. there was "P.T."—physical training—with Sgt. Kay Millican in charge. "It's fun, and it keeps down the waistline," said the sergeant who comes from Vancouver and who was a brilliant agriculture graduate of the University of British Columbia. "You eat so much better here that you need it."

After P.T., as the sun was slanting down across the lush Norfolk county countryside, the girls scattered to do pretty much as they wanted. Their time was their own till bedtime at 10 p.m.

Some members of the R.C.A.F.'s women's division got back into uniform and trooped off with the airmen to the station movie that runs three times a week. As many as the courts would hold were playing tennis; others were playing badminton in the big gymnasium. And some, in sun suits, were lying on a sheltered piece of grass getting the last rays of the sun.

COMPETITIVE BASEBALL

Over in a field there was a baseball game and an airman was coaching the girls for their league game against W.D.'s from Hagersville the next evening. Small, brunette Corporal Mary Pound of Winnipeg, in brown slacks and white sweat shirt, was catching.

The team's best rooter is Airwoman Flora Glass, a cook from Calgary. In bright pink slacks and sweater she was talking a fine baseball game and the team members said they couldn't play without her.

Girls who take their fun a bit more quietly were reading or writing in the airwomen's recreation centre and some had been invited into the airmen's mess where they were chatting or reading. When the girls come to the station, the airmen voted that the girls should be invited to use the library as a common meeting ground. The arrangement doesn't seem to be a hardship on anyone.

Two nights a week the girls ask the men to their own recreation hall. On Thursday there's a dancing party there and on Sunday, games and a sing-song. The library is a popular place in the evening. The airmen and airwomen prefer to read humorous books and murder mysteries, said AW2 Doris Spring of Hamilton, the station's librarian.

But it's not all fun and games on the air station at night and there was plenty of work going on. AW2 Nano Pennefather of Ottawa was wandering about as duty airwoman, relieving the N.C.O.'s. Her job, she she said, was to be available wherever she was wanted, to keep things running smoothly. At the minute she was carrying an armful of extra blankets to someone who had been cold the night before.

FOOD FOR FLIERS

It wasn't an off-duty hour for the kitchen staff either. AW. M. N. Woodsworth of Oliver, B.C.—she said she's called "Blitz" around here—was cooking up a fine hash of meat, vegetables and onions for the night fliers who would be bringing their planes down soon. Preliminary preparations for breakfast were also being made. Corporal Harold Cormier of Moncton, N.B., by his own admission is a "hard man" and he makes sure the girls keep their white chef's caps on and their white smocks clean. A girl with straggly hair loses a month's leave.

Girls are slower and steadier in a barracks kitchen, said Cpl. Cormier as he prepared a big pan of pumpkin pie for the late fliers. It takes two girls to handle some of the big pots and soup cauldrons where one man could do it, but the girls are faster on the steam table from which the food is served.

The girls clean up better, he said, and pointed to AW. Florence Nightingale from Vancouver who was sweeping up the floor. She stopped long enough to say she thought she was a relative "distantly removed" of the famous Florence Nightingale. The golden tan she had, she said, resulted from a 48-hour leave at Port Dover, Ont. The people of Port Dover have opened their homes to the airmen and airwomen and give them a chance to spend leaves on the shore of Lake Erie.

Wedding Vows Are Pledged At First Church

AT a ceremony solemnized in the social room of First Presbyterian church Thursday morning at 11:00 a.m., Carol Young Hutchison, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hutchison, of Edmonton, became the bride of Mr. Robert Bruce Morrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Morrison, also of the city. The Rev. J. MacBeath Miller officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractive in her queen's blue wool redingote over a white crepe frock. With her ensemble she wore a small white off-the-face white hat with matching blue ribbons, white shoes and gloves. At her shoulder she wore a corsage of white gladioli, pink and blue cornflowers.

Miss Kent Hutchison, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. For the wedding she chose an afternoon frock of wheat colored crepe trimmed with matching fringe. Her small hat, shoes and gloves were all of matching wheat shade, and her flowers were Johanna Hill roses and mauve sweetpeas en corsage.

Mr. A. Johanneson supported the bridegroom as best man.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hutchison entertained at a reception to 30 guests at their home on 106 street. To receive, Mrs. Hutchison, mother of the bride, wore an afternoon dress of navy blue crepe with crisp touches of white. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage of deep pink roses at her shoulder.

Sports Clubs Plan Varied Activities

ALTHOUGH many sport enthusiasts are still off on holidays, Edmonton tennis and golf clubs are planning tournaments accompanied by parties, dances and a round of fun.

A shortage of rubber has hampered many a tennis play, and Eastwood club for this reason will not have a tournament, but Glenora fans hope to have a number of club tournament games this week-end.

On Sunday, former members of the club will gather to play, and afterwards will be entertained at dinner at Glenora club house.

Members of Civil Service Tennis Club will hold a number of exhibition games at their club Thursday evening, afterwards foregathering in the club house for tea. A number of men in the R.C.A.F., who have been playing at the club, will be present. Mr. Lawson Caseley, president and Miss Mary Miller are in charge of arrangements.

GOLFERS ENTERTAINED

On Tuesday members of the Edmonton Golf and Country club were entertained at a luncheon by Mayfair golfers. The Edmonton club hopes to have its tournament within two or three weeks.

Franks are more than something to eat that's fun. They contain complete protein, B complex vitamins and essential minerals. So use them without any feeling you are not living up to the best standards.

SCRAMBLED FRANKFURTERS

Six frankfurters, 2 tablespoons butter, 4 eggs, 2 tablespoons cream, ½ cup chopped celery, ¾ teaspoon salt, toast triangles, ¼ cup mashed liver sausage, parsley.

Slice the frankfurters thin and saute in butter until brown. Beat eggs slightly, add cream, celery and salt. Mix well and pour over frankfurters. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until eggs and frankfurters are well scrambled. Serve on toast triangles which have been spread with mashed liver sausage. Garnish with parsley. Makes 4 servings.

FRANKFURTERS CREOLE

Ten frankfurters, ¾ cup chopped onion, 1-3 cup chopped mushrooms, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1½ cups water, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon thyme, 1 bay leaf, ½ cup chopped pepper, 2 tablespoons of chopped parsley.

Cut frankfurters in 2-inch pieces crosswise. Saute onion and mushrooms in butter 3 minutes; stir in flour and cook 1 minute. Add water gradually and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add seasonings, green pepper, parsley and frankfurters and simmer 8 to 10 minutes. Serve hot on toast or mounds of rice. Makes 6 servings.

Minister Works In Plane Plant "To Kill Nazis"

GLASGOW, July 30—(CP)—Rev. Percival MacKenzie, 55-year-old Church of Scotland minister, is working 10 hours a day in an aircraft parts factory "because I want the Germans killed." "I want them all killed off," he said emphatically. "They are a race of destroyers. I would not take the risk of leaving any of that race of proud, arrogant people alive."

His views aroused many responses. Nevertheless, in every tournament some player traps himself, as South did in today's hand.

North likes the club bid and sees slam possibilities. He jumps to four clubs, and South duly responds with four no trump, the Blackwood Convention asking for a show of aces. North's bid of five hearts is the conventional response to show two aces.

Knowing that his side has all four aces, South now thinks that six clubs is sure. There may be seven if North has enough kings. So South bids five no trump, the Blackwood way of asking for kings.

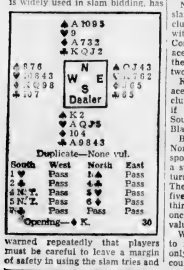

But he traps his side. Unless North has no kings at all and responds six clubs, he is bound to bid a suit that will force South to return to clubs at the level of seven. There is no margin for the bid of five no trump. That is the same thing as bidding seven clubs at once, and South does not have the values for the grand slam.

While the slam is not impossible to make, it is most difficult and only the most far-seeing player could take all 13 tricks.

What To Do

7-30

Every day we are told to take good care of the things we have, because for the duration they cannot be replaced.

This means clean your carpet sweeper, your vacuum cleaner, and all your electrical appliances, frequently. Clean your toaster regularly with a special brush to remove accumulated crumbs. Defrost your refrigerator regularly, and clean it thoroughly. Keep your washing machine and electric range in A-1 condition.

Take care of your floors and linoleum. Spray wax on your floors and the finish will last longer.

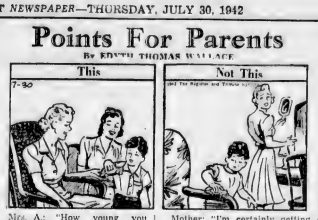

Clean your screens with a small vacuum attachment and then brush them on both sides with kerosene. This will give them a rust resistent finish.

Polish your furniture frequently, and shift your furniture around to afford even wear. Change your rugs so they won't show worn spots, and air upholstered cushions in the sun.

LONDON — (CP) — Sir Percy Harris, Liberal whip in the House of Commons, addressed the National Spinsters' Pensions Association, and expressed concern over the future of single women over 50 who now are engaged on war work. He said one of the forthcoming post-war tragedies was who would want these women over 50. He added: "I think you can put a strong case for pensions at 55, at any rate for women who went in for war work at this critical stage of the nation's history."

Rice To Be Conserved In Canada

OTTAWA, July 30.—Rice is the important food of millions of people in the Far East. For them an empty rice bowl is the tragic forerunner of, at best, semi-starvation.

Canadians think of rice in terms of a curry, a pudding or chop suey and eat about four or five pounds a year each. Americans, who have practically the same eating habits as Canadians (as far as rice is concerned), consume six pounds a year per person. Outside of civilian life rice is playing an important part as a good army food, being very nourishing, compact for shipping and easily stored. During 1941 the department of munitions and supply purchased 2,000,000 bushels for the army in Canada.

Before the war Canada imported rice, paddy and cleaned, from Burma, the United States, Hong Kong, British India, Japan and small amounts from other countries. The bulk of these supplies came from Burma and the United States. In 1939-1940 Canada imported 15,000,000 pounds of the United States crop. Annual production there runs at about 54,000,000 bushels. (One bushel of rice equals 45 pounds). It is grown mostly in the states of Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and California.

Unfortunately, rice is not a crop the production of which can be stepped up quickly to meet any shortages. Cultivation is difficult and expensive. This cereal grain needs a warm climate and a long growing season with the ground kept from four to six inches under water from seeding to harvest.

As a result of these factors the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has recently issued orders which will result in the conservation of present supplies of rice in Canada.

3 menus and a recipe that will stimulate lazy summer appetites

When the thermometer soars, appetites go into a natural decline. And the two best ways to revive these lagging appetites is (1) to give particular thought to eye-appeal in planning meals and (2) plan loads of surprises in both kinds of food and in manner of service.

Serve plenty of fresh fruits, salads and chilled beverages, but balance these with more substantial foods. And be sure to include at least one hot dish in every menu—digestion rebels when everything is icy.

And now—the three menus and the recipe—all easy-to-prepare, all brimming with appetite appeal, all tested in the kitchens of the Safeway Homemakers' Bureau.

All about the 3 types of barbecuing

FIRE AND FUEL

Whatever your method of barbecuing, glowing coals, not leaping flames, are what you want. The best fuels are charcoal, pressed sawdust logs, and hardwoods. Oak, applewood, maple, hickory, birch, ash, beech, and cottonwood burn with a sweet taste and aroma that permeates the meat.

GRILL BARBECUING

In grill barbecuing, meats are cooked on a grill or grate about 4 to 8 inches above coals. This is the most common method and the best method for steaks, ground meat patties, lamb chops, pork chops, sliced bacon and ham, small whole fish, sliced fish, broiler chickens, wieners, and spareribs.

To grill barbecue, have grill hot before adding meat. Sear meat quickly on both sides. Then broil 5 to 10 minutes on each side, turning frequently and basting with melted butter, cooking oil, or barbecue sauce (this increases flavor and tenderness). You can use a pastry brush or a clean cloth tied to end of long stick for basting. Use long tongs or long-handled, 2-tined fork to turn the meat. Avoid pricking the lean part of the meat, or the juices will escape.

Note: Chicken needs to be cooked about 60 minutes on each side to assure tenderness. Pork should be cooked at least 15 minutes on each side. Beef should be cut about 1 inch thick. Thinner cuts may dry out in cooking; thicker ones may not cook through.

STICK OR TOASTER BARBECUING

This is the best method for wieners, kabobs, small thick steaks and chops, strips of bacon, small parboiled link sausages, and slices or cubes of ham. You can use a long green-pointed stick, a long-handled fork, or a toaster. Be sure to turn the meat, and baste often.

Why don't you get your "big" order on a weekday too.

Not only will you have more time to play on weekends, but you'll be able to shop more leisurely if you get your big grocery order on a weekday. Safeway prices, you know, are always low, on everything, every day of the week.

Reward Posted For Vancouver Bank Robbers

VANCOUVER, July 30.—(CP) —City police announced today that one of the two men who escaped from the Vancouver city jail early yesterday was captured in the afternoon in an East End hotel. He is John Pethick, 38, no fixed address. The other, escaped prisoner, John Frederick Dow, alias Dillon, 22, is still at large.

Pethick's capture was not announced immediately as detectives kept vigil in the hotel room for several hours in the expectation Dow might turn up there.

Meanwhile, a reward notice was posted by the Canadian Bankers' Association for information leading to the arrest and conviction, or for the arrest and conviction of any accomplice or person concerned in the $56,505 hold-up of a Bank of Montreal branch office here yesterday as police pressed investigation into the robbery and the slaying of Mrs. Alexia Sloan Monday night.

Still buried was a Revelstoke, British Columbia, man who registered at an East End hotel in the room where the body of Mrs. Alexia Sloan, 42, was found late Monday night. Police said she had been strangled.

Four employees of the Bank of Montreal branch (at Main and Prior streets) were back at their desks today in offices where they were held up at gunpoint yesterday by bandits flourishing a sawed-off shotgun and a revolver.

VANCOUVER, July 30.—(CP)—A. E. Craddock, secretary-manager of the Associated Property Owners of Vancouver, said here yesterday that landlords in all parts of British Columbia are supporting its efforts to secure changes in the regulations put in force by the rentals control board.

Crop Storage Now Terrific Problem

OTTAWA, July 30—(CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon said in the House of Commons today he doubts if he will be able to make a statement on proposed handling of the 1942 wheat crop before adjournment of the house, expected Saturday or early next week.

Conferences between the Canadian Wheat Board and other authorities have been conducted on storage accommodation for the new crop which will probably overflow all existing storage buildings, he said.

Rev. T. C. Douglas (CCF, Weyburn) asked if Dominion assistance will be given to farmers in obtaining materials to provide storage space on farms.

Mr. MacKinnon said the first steps should be taken by the provinces but representations might be made to the Dominion. Already the wheat board had consulted with supply authorities in respect to availability of lumber and nails for such building.

Land operations were limited to minor skirmishes and dust storms curtailed aerial activity to some extent, the daily communique said.

Two Axis mines were reported shot down over Malta by British fighters which forced a formation of enemy bombers to jettison their bombs. Air activity over the island also was on a reduced scale, the communique said.

Getting Around

of fare for hundreds of thousands who in time almost lost hope completely.

Children grew into manhood and womanhood without ever holding a job.

Every political party wove its campaign around the issue of solving unemployment or providing greater relief. Every government in office found itself in the face of having failed to solve unemployment. Public works programs failed as a lasting solution and in many cases were abandoned because the monetary costs were greater than direct relief.

There were variations from time to time with slight improvements in conditions that were followed by hurt heart-breaking recessions.

Then came the fateful days of 1939 and war.

* * *

Into the armed forces flocked thousands of youths. Faced with the demands of mechanized war, factories and mills that had been long silent or only in partial operation, started to advertise for help once again.

And now finally, just about 13 years after the start of October day in 1929, we are able to officially abolish relief.

But we have has any good sound reason to feel overly happy about it.

* * *

The real underlying causes of those bleak years of relief still remain. The problem of unemployment still remains in all of its formidable perplexity. Only the foolish will be deceived by the thriving conditions of the present.

But out of this condition of total war may come lessons of organization and operation by which depressions may be routed forever.

That is the one bright spot in the circumstances surrounding closing of relief depots at this time.

2nd Bn. Edmonton Regt. In Tactical Scheme At Annual Training Camp

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

SARCEE CAMP, July 30.—Halfway through the second week of camp, the Second Battalion, Edmonton Regiment, (R)CA., on Wednesday started its 30-hour tactical scheme which took the men into the hills west of camp for a day-and-night bivouac under the direction of Lt.-Col. R. W. Hale, M.C., officer commanding, and Capt. Miles Palmer, second-in-command.

Those who attended camp the first two weeks of the month bivouacked at the same spot—Point "D" on the map of Sarcee.

This exercise was planned to give the battalion a taste of the "real thing" in modern warfare; the unit took up a defensive position at the crest of the hill and immediately started to "dig in." Slit trenches were constructed under the direction of officers and the men were shown how to build a "bivvy"—a temporary shelter for the night's rest. Nights at Sarcee are chilly but with plenty of blankets the men were prepared for a comfortable night.

Value of the demonstration of camp cooking given the men last week by Sgms. Locke, army cook at Currie Barracks, was proven as the reserve soldiers built campfires and cooked their meals in mess tins placed on the glowing embers. Meat, vegetables and coffee were prepared in this way and it tasted like food fit for a king.

Under direction of Lt. Col. Hale, Capt. Palmer and R.S.M. Bill Angus, assisted by officers and N.C.O.'s, the more than 200 men taking part were shown how to take up a defensive position.

They were shown how to place their battalion weapons, including the famous Bren gun, so that the approaching enemy would face a withering crossfire. Importance of protecting their rear was also stressed; the men are taught to remember that: "As usual, the enemy attacked from the rear." Scouts and patrols were on duty day and night and a system of warning signals was worked out so the four platoons taking part would be given instant warning of the presence of the enemy.

TRUCKS CARRY SUPPLIES

Supplies for the exercise were moved into the hills by truck, but the men marched with full kit up the six miles to Point "D". But to a soldier a six-mile march is nothing.

The battalion was scheduled to return to camp Thursday noon.

Other events for the battalion this week include "guest night" on Thursday evening and the campfire concert scheduled for Friday night in which the whole camp takes part.

An important part of modern warfare training was given the battalion Monday when the whole unit was put through the gas chamber. The men passed through the gas-filled room the first time protected by respirators; the second time through they took off their respirators and were given an effective lesson in the value of the respirators, as they breathed the unpleasant "tear" gas. Effects of this gas pass off in a few moments, and the only irritation suffered by the men is a smarting in the nostrils throat and eyes, accompanied by a copious amount of tears.

THOROUGH TRAINING

A thorough program of training has been given the battalion during the second camp period. Every officer, N.C.O. and man has had his day's work and entertainment planned for him from the time reveille sounds until "lights out."

Sports and social events are just as much a part of a soldier's life as the grim instruction in battle methods; the lighter side of the syllabus gives the men an opportunity to relax and prepare for the next day's training.

The band, under Sgt.-Maj. Graydon Tipp, has done much to entertain the Edmonton Regiment as well as other units in camp. Bandsmen are given a certain amount of drill, while band rehearsals also take up much of their time.

CHURCH PARADE

On Sunday, the band played for the church parade held in camp; music was also provided for the battalion's tabloid sports staged Saturday and Sunday. A concert was given Sunday afternoon and on Tuesday night the band gave a broadcast; on Thursday bandsmen played at Currie Barracks, while on Friday night they will provide music at the campfire concert.

In addition to all this, the "good old band" plays the battalion to and from the training grounds during the day. The musicians have also played for the guard inspection, not only for their own unit, but for several other units in camp, including the Edmonton Fusiliers.

Approximately 30 bandsmen are training with the battalion and their music has given a real "lift" to the training routine.

OFFICERS ASSISTING

Officers assisting in training or on the administration staff are Capt. Miles Palmer, 2-IC; Lt. G. E. Blais, adjutant; 2-Lt. T. Cross, quartermaster; Lt. J. Mantle, administration officer; weapons training officer, 2-Lt. H. Boyle; gas training officer, 2-Lt. Frank Heron; 2-Lt. W. Stewart, sports supervisor; 2-Lt. H. Kesner, paymaster; platoon commanders, Lt. R. Martland, Lt. L. Foster, Lt. F. M. Sanger-Davies, 2Lt. H. Ingram; 2-Lt. J. A. L'Orsse, assistant administration and butt officer; 2-Lt. S. Lancaster, signals officer. Officers taking the army training school at camp are 2-Lt. E. C. Manning, 2-Lt. R. Dallamore and 2-Lt. E. Miller. 2-Lt. H. McKim is permanent orderly officer.

Training of the battalion has been constantly checked by Col. E. H. Knight, V.D., officer commanding the 41st (Reserve) Brigade Group, and Maj. W. C. Roberts, brigade major. Their checking has assisted officers and N.C.O.'s to improve their training methods.

A recent visitor to the battalion's lines was Lt. Col. Louis Scott, D.C.M., commanding the C.I.T.C., Currie Barracks. He complimented Lt. Col. Hale on the training methods and syllabus in use and also on the neatness of the camp lines.

298 Nurses From Canada Are Now In South Africa

OTTAWA, July 30.—(CP)—Two hundred and ninety-eight Canadian nurses of 300 recruited for the South African military nursing service have arrived safely in South Africa, it was announced here yesterday.

The announcement was made by David de Waal Meyer, accredited representative in Canada for the Union of South Africa, who said the nurses travelled in convoy to South Africa.

In all, 300 nurses were recruited in Canada but two became ill, one in Canada and the other in the United Kingdom. The one in Canada has since recovered and probably will go to South Africa in a later convoy while the other is in a Canadian military hospital in Britain.

To Investigate Profits Tax On Flying Schools

OTTAWA, July 30. — (CP) — Finance Minister Ilsley said in the House of Commons yesterday he would investigate whether elementary flying training schools operated by civilian flying training schools are called upon to pay excess profits tax.

The question was raised by John Diefenbaker (Con., Lake Centre) when the house yesterday afternoon began consideration of a bill to amend the excess profits tax and bring into effect proposals made in the 1942-43 budget.

He said it was his understanding that such schools have not been called upon to pay excess profits tax although they were building up "tremendous" surpluses which would be distributed to the operating clubs after the war.

AWAIT DECISION

Mr. Ilsley said he would be surprised if they were not paying. Some companies had only paid the normal 40 per cent tax on profits and were awaiting a decision by the board of referees fixing the "standard year" income on which excess profits tax would be levied.

Conservative House Leader Hanson said a section of the bill providing that the question whether a business is depressed or not must be determined to the finance minister's satisfaction, represents the loss of a certain right to the taxpayer.

Concessions in taxation are granted firms which show their business was depressed during the standard period on which excess profits are calculated.

If the minister is not satisfied the taxpayer's business was repressed he may direct the standard profits be ascertained by a board of referees.

In addition, the proviso is made that the minister may assess the taxpayer in accordance with the provisions of the act other than through the system of reference to a board of referees.

Mr. Ilsley said it was necessary that the minister have power to establish the assessment.

Delivery Ban For Rural Mail Asked

OTTAWA, July 30.—(CP)—Gordon Ross (Lib., Moose Jaw) asked Postmaster-General Mulock in the House of Commons last night to eliminate all rural mail delivery services which he declared were unnecessary, unequally distributed and had for years constituted a "system of mass patronage."

He said that of the $2,986,000 a year spent on rural mail deliveries $1,502,000 was spent in thickly-settled Ontario while the total spent in the four sparsely-settled western provinces was $377,000.

Any one of three postal districts in Ontario had more money spent in them for rural mail delivery than the combined four western provinces.

If the system were to be operated at all it should go to serve the isolated, sparsely-settled areas and not the well-settled suburban districts where there are good roads and constant travelling past the nearest post-offices.

Big Fellows Now Eligible For Air

MONCTON, N.B., July 30.—(CP)—Limitation of air crew recruits to a maximum height of six feet two inches and weight of 210 pounds has been lifted, Flt.-Lt. H. Wensley announced following his return yesterday from a conference at Ottawa. He is commanding officer of the Royal Canadian Air Force recruiting centre here.

Shortage Of Labor Slows Mines Work

Labor shortage has slowed up the work on the $125,000 construction and development program at Merco, according to H. R. Plummer, Vancouver, general manager of the MacLeod River Coal Mining company, who was a visitor in Edmonton Wednesday. Work is being proceeded with as rapidly as possible, he added, and will be completed this fall.

The problem of securing materials also affected the progress of the work, but this situation was relieved through taking materials from other mines owned by the parent company, Canadian Collieries Ltd., which has extensive mine holdings.

Beside mine development the development at Merco includes the erection of 29 cottages.

Ill Overseas

Army Woman Margaret Stuart Ross of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, whose home was at 9407 99 street, is seriously ill on active service, a Canadian Army casualty list issued Thursday reveals. Mrs. W. M. G. Ross of the same address, is her mother.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

To Prospective Gas Consumers

THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT has recently restricted the installation of gas service by regulations which read in part as follows:—"in no event shall lines be extended for the connection of new consumers except in the case of extensions not exceeding 250 feet to buildings which were wired or piped ready to receive service prior to July 1, 1942, or in the case of new construction where the foundation under the main part of the structure was completed prior to July 1, 1942."

YOUR GAS COMPANY has applied to the Dominion Government for modification of this ruling, and although no promises can be made, except in cases which comply with the above regulations, anyone who desires gas service from our existing mains and who has not already signed one of our regular application forms should apply in person at the Gas Company's offices IMMEDIATELY.
